
ESPN.com College Pick-em: Week 3

Just something I thought was very amusing. Go to espn.com, front page. Look at the motion (video) viewer on the top right of the page. Click through the pages until you get see the College Pick-em: Week 3. Watch that segment.

I have a few questions about that the "predictions":

- 1) Who was those two?
- 2) Have they ever watched a football game in their lives?
- 3) Who let Miss Teen South Carolina make the predictions this week?

I found the predictions more comical than anything and surprised ESPN would allow such trash to be a part of their empire, but by the end of the clip I just had to stop it because I felt embarrassed for them. Talk about brutal.

Your thoughts?

I have also have a few questions

- 1) Who wrote the garbage script they are reading?
- 2) How did these two get jobs?
- 3) How can the dude say that she knows her stuff?

I also like them making up reasons that BYU will lose by using pre-season criticisms, have they even watched BYU play?

Direct quote- "Tulsa has a great pass defense, which may be problematic for BYU." Better than Arizona, better than UCLA? Give me a break.

The quote that got me....."the artificial turf will showcase Tulsa's speed against BYU's slowness". :blink:

Tell you what, go ask the Tulsa DB how "slow" BYU is after Austin Collie burns past him for the 2nd time.

I also didn't see anyone run "slow" Curtis Brown down from behind last year as he ran for a 60 yard TD.

Yeah, I couldn't agree more with everyone. BYU's SLOW defense????? Please... and what does turf have to do w/the eventual result of the game. If ANYTHING, it'll make byu's defense even quicker. Oh, and yeah- "BYU loses all their position players from last year"..- guess THAT means they lose right?? Those ppl don't know anything. That's a big load of either BS or not wathing ANY football whatsoever
