
LV Bowl SOLD OUT

Posted by detmer4prez - 2007/10/17 22:41

CRAP!

That is all I can say. I checked a few days ago and they were down to 1700 so I tried to get a "for sure" commitment from some friends before I got the tickets. I waited a day too long. :blush: :(

Maybe I am one of those who now hopes that the LV bowl does pass up the Cougs when we win the conference (although I think they would be stupid to do so.) At least I would be able to go to the game then.

*On a side note: If there is anyone who is looking to sell 4 tickets, we should talk.

Re:LV Bowl SOLD OUT

Posted by Cosmo9798 - 2007/10/17 22:49

They will release more tickets to each team once the invites are finalized. Don't sweat it.

Re:LV Bowl SOLD OUT

Posted by detmer4prez - 2007/10/17 22:54

Yeah, they did that last year but I can 100% guarantee that I will not be one that can get one. They will all be snatched up by cougar club members before I even get a shot. When they did it last year there were very few people (if any) that were able to get tix when they released more unless they were big money donors. Luckily, last year I had mine before they sold out, I just wasn't as lucky this year. I do hope that you are right Cosmo so I can get one this year.

Re:LV Bowl SOLD OUT

Posted by etyotx - 2007/10/17 23:08

detmer4prez wrote:Yeah, they did that last year but I can 100% guarantee that I will not be one that can get one. They will all be snatched up by cougar club members before I even get a shot. When they did it last year there were very few people (if any) that were able to get tix when they released more unless they were big money donors. Luckily, last year I had mine before they sold out, I just wasn't as lucky this year. I do hope that you are right Cosmo so I can get one this year.

Last year there were a bunch of tickets available from Oregon's allotment for a week or so after BYU's and the bowl's allotments were sold out. They went fast, mostly to Cougar fans, but I think that option will be available again this year.

Re:LV Bowl SOLD OUT

Posted by detmer4prez - 2007/10/18 01:36

Thats right! Yesssss!!! There is still hope!

I remember now that last year a few of my friends wanted to go but didn't have tickets yet so I got some for them that way and just had them sent to my parents address in Oregon. I am sure the ticket people thought we were Duck fans. :lol: Maybe this year we will play a team like Oregon State.

Re:LV Bowl SOLD OUT

Posted by craigocarson - 2007/10/18 06:44

Sold out = ticket brokers have bought up - not that the seats will be full as of now

BYU will have their allotment, but there will be a ton available online too

Re:LV Bowl SOLD OUT

Posted by imuakahuku - 2007/10/18 06:44

Just wait until the PAC-10 invitee is announced then call them and pretend to be a fan. After all, the PAC-10 team doesn't even want to be there!

Re:LV Bowl SOLD OUT

Posted by Khinkaid - 2007/10/18 07:07

craigocarson wrote:

Sold out = ticket brokers have bought up - not that the seats will be full as of now

BYU will have their allotment, but there will be a ton available online too

The above is the reality. These tickets have been bought by scalpers looking to make a buck off the BYU fans. They are speculating that that will be the team going. If it is not they could get stuck with some tickets, but we all know it will be.

Re:LV Bowl SOLD OUT

Posted by mormonrasta - 2007/10/18 08:41

What if BYU ends up in San Diego?

Re:LV Bowl SOLD OUT

Posted by cougarfan1 - 2007/10/18 09:09

detmer4prez wrote:

CRAP!

That is all I can say. I checked a few days ago and they were down to 1700 so I tried to get a "for sure" commitment from some friends before I got the tickets. I waited a day too long. :blush: :(

Maybe I am one of those who now hopes that the LV bowl does pass up the Cougs when we win the conference (although I think they would be stupid to do so.) At least I would be able to go to the game then.

*On a side note: If there is anyone who is looking to sell 4 tickets, we should talk.

They will sell more tickets down the road. But if you just want to show up at the stadium, you are likely to get tickets. My brother went last year and got free tickets right after kickoff from scalpers who couldn't sell their tickets. 5 minutes before kickoff he could get them for selling price.

Re:LV Bowl SOLD OUT

Posted by bluesista - 2007/10/18 16:41

Can we start some campaign to make BYU (aka the MWC champs) the home team? They get treated poorly (at least they're not staying at the Golden Nugget again) while the LV Bowl people profit considerably from the fans.

Honestly, who's in charge of the contracts for BYU? Between the Comcast debacle and the Las Vegas Bowl treatment, I'm fairly frustrated.

=====