
UPDATE: Chow to be named UCLA offensive coordinator

This thread discusses the Content article: UPDATE: Chow to be named UCLA offensive coordinator

I thought we opened the 2008 season against Northern Iowa? Whatever...considering how predictable Chow was at BYU, he should be easy to defense.

And exactly how predicatble was he the last 7 years since leaving BYU? Just predictable enough to coach four Heisman trophy winners while running some of the top offenses in the game.

No matter what your opinion of him during his days at BYU, he has adapted and changed and deserves our respect or else we'll get beat come the third week of the '08 season. We cannot take him or his offense lightly.

Chow is a good OC. He will help UCLA offensively no question. I don't like Neuheisel but I have to give him props for going after and getting Chow. That was a good football move and with Walker sticking around on the other side of the ball, if we beat UCLA, it will show as a good win because they will win some ball games. It may take a little while but with a solid D in place, once their offense gets going, they will wreak havoc in the Pac 10. I wish Chow the best in his new digs and hope he does well, except when in Provo.

I hope Chow takes 3 or 4 weeks getting the offense firing on all cylindars and never loses other than losing to BYU and UW. UW fora couple fo reasons. My best friend's son plays for UW and UW is a BYU opponent, so it does not hurt our SOS if they whack UCLA. Would it not be sweet to see Rick (I almost added a letter on the front of his name but have matured too much to do that) Neuheisal along with two former BYU coaches as his coordinators and a tarnished former BYU QB spank the Trojans?

GO Cougs BYU 28 UCLA 0.

GO UCLA UCLA 28 USC 0.

My ideal BCS title game would be BYU vs. USC in the Rose Bowl. It could happen. If you want to be the best, you got to beat the best and for the past 5 years, they have been the best.

I'm not a Chow fan, but you gotta thank the man for his help coaching the 1984 team if nothing else. Hawaii shoulda hired him as their head coach.

erick (the red)?
brick (no, that's a basketball nickname)?
crick (I don't get it either)?
trick (those are the plays Gary Crowton runs)?
orick (almost like the vacuum cleaner)?

I give up.

Basically, we really need some help this year if we are going to win all of our games. I mean, what if Chow does what Tulsa did this past year and unloads all the contents of his entirely heretofore secret "Cougar Stomping, Vortex-of-Death-Like, Offensive Playbook of Hope and Wonder"?

I don't think that Chow has a trick playbook like Tulsa did.

Chow's (and Carroll's) first year at USC the team went 6-5 and then lost to Utah in the Las Vegas Bowl. Since then, I don't think they have played in a non-BCS bowl.

Chow wasn't there that year, he was still with NC state.

Chow was there in 2001 the year USC played Utah. See the link and scroll down where it shows where he coached and the bowl game:

When Norm was at BYU he didn't have the greatest athletes. (which is why he was predictable) so a lot of his play calling was limited to the talent he had on offense. What BYU lacked in speed they made up as a team which was difficult to defend.

Turn the page to his dayz at USC and the amount of talent he had and the rest is history. Now just think what he will do with Ben Olsen and UCLA? I don't think he will be predictable but I know he will be a contender for the Rose Bowl and a shot at the BCS title.

I PREDICT BEN OLSEN A HEISMAN FINALIST.....

You also predicted a Hawaii win over Georgia. Even you can admit you have zero credibility.

I think you're probably right if Chow had come to UCLA 2 years ago, but I don't think he's going to have enough time to make Olsen that good. Let's face it, Olsen is just not good right now, and it's going to take a lot more than a HC change to make him a heisman finalist. I can't remember the last time I saw a qb that was so scared of the blitz.
