
Wyoming @ UNLV

Posted by Yndian - 2008/01/23 21:03

With 5:00 left in the first half, it's 31-26 Wyoming!

=====

Re:Wyoming @ UNLV

Posted by Yndian - 2008/01/23 21:10

3:43 left in the half, and Wyoming takes a double digit lead, 38-28.

=====

Re:Wyoming @ UNLV

Posted by Yndian - 2008/01/23 21:18

And it's 40-32 at the half, Wyoming with the lead.

=====

Re:Wyoming @ UNLV

Posted by domanater - 2008/01/23 21:36

UNLV is a pretty mediocre team, the fact that we lost to them by 30 just shows how much confidence Trent and JT have lost since the beginning of the season, and how poorly we play on the road.

=====

Re:Wyoming @ UNLV

Posted by Yndian - 2008/01/23 21:45

Now things are getting back to normal. Wyoming's hanging on, 42-40 with 15:44 left in the game.

=====

Re:Wyoming @ UNLV

Posted by Yndian - 2008/01/23 22:12

Just under 4:00, UNLV's up 65-61.

=====

Re:Wyoming @ UNLV

Posted by Yndian - 2008/01/23 22:26

Wyoming's keeping it interesting with late 3's. UNLV's shooting free throws with a 75-71 lead and 22.5 seconds left.

Wink Adams has 32 points and is ice from the free throw line.

Wink makes the first, misses the second.

WYO misses a three, UNLV gets the rebound and is fouled.

Too bad, but it was a pretty good game.

Final score, 78-71.

=====

Re:Wyoming @ UNLV

Posted by cougarfan144 - 2008/01/23 22:36

domanater wrote:

UNLV is a pretty mediocre team, the fact that we lost to them by 30 just shows how much confidence Trent and JT have lost since the beginning of the season, and how poorly we play on the road.

UNLV is one of those teams that seems to get up for BYU and plays like mediocre crap against everybody else.

What's surprising is it was at home for UNLV, right? They should have played better on that fact alone, as it is their team's identity from what Greg Wrubell explained in his blog back when we played them the first time.

Re:Wyoming @ UNLV

Posted by cougarfan144 - 2008/01/23 22:42

My brother just informed me that UNLV had a near flawless game offensively but still eeked it out near the end. Having no prior knowledge of the facts of this game, I just don't get it.

Re:Wyoming @ UNLV

Posted by kenj - 2008/01/23 23:46

We made the mistake of playing man. We should have played zone. I think we would have won playing zone. Oh well. AFA beat them and made them look horrible. Go Cougs

Re:Wyoming @ UNLV

Posted by CougarPeasant - 2008/01/24 13:21

cougarfan144 wrote:

domanater wrote:

UNLV is a pretty mediocre team, the fact that we lost to them by 30 just shows how much confidence Trent and JT have lost since the beginning of the season, and how poorly we play on the road.

UNLV is one of those teams that seems to get up for BYU and plays like mediocre crap against everybody else.

What's surprising is it was at home for UNLV, right? They should have played better on that fact alone, as it is their team's identity from what Greg Wrubell explained in his blog back when we played them the first time.

UNLV played out of their minds in the first half against BYU and I doubt zone D would have made a difference. They hit some crazy 3 pointers that no self respecting NBA gunner would have taken. They were 7-10 behind the arc and 3 of those shots were from at least 25 feet out. BYU was 2-10 behind the arc in the first half, which is a 15 point differential. Factor in BYU's lousy shooting from the free throw line and UNLV had no trouble being up by 19 at the half. BYU was in such a hole at half time they just couldn't get out of it.

Seeing BYU come back and beat Utah on the road and gutting out a tough home game against the league leader even though their shot wasn't falling well are character builders for this team for when they play the rest of the conference. I really doubt they will be threatened at home the rest of the season and there are 3-4 more wins they can get on the road. They could well finish 13-3.

The interesting thing will be how does Rose adjust with JT in a complete slump from the arc and TP struggling from the line. Cummard is the heart of this team. Who's going to step up and get the rest of the team in line? Keena did it last season, will Lee do it this year?

Re:Wyoming @ UNLV

Posted by alicemark - 2008/08/13 01:55

Last year the UNLV defense ranked third in the Mountain West in terms of pass defense, permitting just 203.3 ypg (22nd nationally), but that had more to do with the secondary than it did with the pressure the line was applying. In fact, not only was UNLV ranked last in the MWC in tackles for loss with just 4.4 per game, the team was third from the bottom among all 119 FBS members in that department.

Alicemark

Wyoming Treatment Centers

=====

Re:Wyoming @ UNLV

Posted by scott715 - 2008/08/16 18:55

This is suppose to be a basketball post. Anyways I heard that UNLV got a commit from the #2 shooting guard prospect, a local prospect.