
Who killed CougarBlue?

A few months from now, when forensic specialists conduct an investigation as to why CougarBlue died, they'll probably conclude the following:

Traffic died and the site became irrelevant soon after CougarBlue decided to post all their articles--whether about the NBA, the Dodgers, or the Iditarod--in the Hot Topics box, thus making it difficult for visitors to read or participate in current threads.

Just my .02.

Your two cents are right on. We've fixed the problem, other sports stories won't post to the forum anymore. Sorry about the extended inconvenience.

Hey, I loved reading about the Iditarod!! :wink: But all I did was hit "Mark All Headlines As Read." But all the NBA Q&A were getting a little old.

colerblueLET'S TALK COUG'S HENCE COUGARBLUE. ONLY THREE MONTH'S UNTIL THE GOOD OL GRIDIRON. If it wasn't for all the unknowns of this upcoming season I am sure we'd have much more to talk about.

But, bring on September 3rd and we're going to have a busy board! :D

Eldermars, when I said we only needed one win against UNLV I was referring to the last two games on Saturday. I knew we had beaten them on Friday (5 of 7), I just couldn't believe that we couldn't win just one of the last two games. I'm still drowning my sorrow in Apple Beer (made in Utah by the way).

I realize that only about three Cougar fans and Cosmo care but just for the record, the baseball team did get screwed by the NCAA Baseball Selection Committee (I wonder whose on that illustrious group).

Only UNLV, the MWCs Conference Championship received an automatic bid while the SEC received 9...no that isn't a typo...9 bids to the NCAA tourney, while the ACC received 7 bids to the tourney.

I'm sorry but it makes me wonder if the conspirator's out there who are saying the Y has gotten screwed ever since the NCAA was forced to back off the Sunday play issue aren't correct in their thinking.

Lack of Comment On tabs

Jared, one other question I have is why are there so many articles lately that are posted without a "comment on" tab? Is that a decision that the author of an article gets to make?

No, that's just a glitch we're working through. We'll fix that tomorrow. The summer months are the time to get all the kinks out in time for August and football season.
