BYU is doing a good job of rebounding tonight.

Less than 10 mins remaining. There have only been about 4 fouls called so far between both teams.

TO

BYU up 21-13

Burgess has the hot hand from 3 land. He's made 3 already.

Only hearing sporadic clips, it doesn't sound like we're falling for the ol' trap game. Plaisted maybe with his 2 fouls.

Our D is solid, holding TCU's percentage down. That's been a consistent theme when we're winning. Hopefully that is something we can continue through the upcoming tourneys.

Plaisted's first foul was a loose ball foul that could have gone either way. His second was an offensive foul where he dropped his shoulder and the defender flopped. Could have been a no call, but there was some contact.

3 mins left and they are trading baskets and both teams are running.

Sounds like we're playing good ball (CURSE that mtn!!!) Oh well. I think it would serve BYU well to keep up their intensity, since TCU has decent success this year at home, and they have a habit of sticking with a team pretty well no matter where they're playing (ala @ BYU year before last, THANK YOU CUMMARD! :laugh: ). Oh, and P.S. I'm pretty sure TCU knows that if they pull this one off, they won't have to play a ROAD GAME in the first round of the Tournament on Thursday. I tell ya, that'd be motivation for me!

And on a sidenote, that'd almost be worth doing to Utah, now that a BYU win is the only thing keeping them from the MWC Tourney 7-seed and a repeat loss at LV . . . ALMOST.:P

JT was robbed. He had a clean block on that steal break and they still called him for the foul.

BYU now up by 1.

Hackett must picked up his 4th foul for TCU. He's their best player this half too.

Tavernari scored a fastbreak bucket and PLAisted just slammed the ball off a feed from Freddette.

But TCU drills a 3 to stay close.

40-36 BYU with 13 mins left.

TCU is a very very good team at home, this is a solid win and we're lucky to get out of town with a W.

New Mexico 24-7 (11-5) 52 74-72 W
San Diego St. 18-11 (9-7) 80 68-62 W
Utah 15-13 (7-9) 111 67-61 W

TCU won some big games at home
