

---

Charlie Hough LDS?

Posted by B-Rex - 2008/03/10 08:14

---

Help, I'm going crazy. I grew up (loosely) in Los Angeles and loved the Dodgers (I bleed alternatively Cougar Blue and Dodger Blue).

I heard the Julianne Hough of Dancing with the Stars was LDS and that ole Charlie Hough was her Uncle. So is he LDS?

After LA, Charlie ended up in Texas, as did I, and I followed his career there.

Does anybody out there know?

If so, are any of the following LDS too?

Don Sutton
Tommy John
Bert Hooton
Rick Monday
Davey Lopes
Billy Russell
Steve Garvey
Ron Cey
Tommy Lasorda
Reggie Smith

---

Re:Charlie Hough LDS?

Posted by buzzard - 2008/03/10 08:32

---

I know for CERTAIN that Tommy John (my 4th cousin, BTW) is not LDS. He was active in some evangelical athletes organization. Lasorda is an Italian catholic, if Garvey, Cey, or Monday were members, their personal behavior would lead us to hope no one found out.

Steve Martin, on the other hand, I heard from my cousins girlfriends roommate, is taking the discussions.... This is what you get for cheering for the Dodgers. Go Angels! The only red I'll ever wear.

---

Re:Charlie Hough LDS?

Posted by B-Rex - 2008/03/10 08:36

---

buzzard wrote:

I know for CERTAIN that Tommy John (my 4th cousin, BTW) is not LDS. He was active in some evangelical athletes organization. Lasorda is an Italian catholic, if Garvey, Cey, or Monday were members, their personal behavior would lead us to hope no one found out.

Steve Martin, on the other hand, I heard from my cousins girlfriends roommate, is taking the discussions.... This is what you get for cheering for the Dodgers. Go Angels! The only red I'll ever wear.

Buzzard...If the name fits!

---

Re:Charlie Hough LDS?

Posted by jbar1221 - 2008/03/10 10:04

---

buzzard wrote:

Go Angels! The only red I'll ever wear.

Agreed!! Anaheim is the only place its safe to wear red!! Go Angels!

---

---

Re:Charlie Hough LDS?

Posted by B-Rex - 2008/03/10 10:22

---

jbar1221 wrote:

buzzard wrote:

Go Angels! The only red I'll ever wear.

Agreed!! Anaheim is the only place its safe to wear red!! Go Angels!

I felt dirty wearing a Santa Clause suit for the Grandkids last Christmas.

As always, "BETTER DEAD THAN RED!"

=====

Re:Charlie Hough LDS?

Posted by buzzard - 2008/03/10 11:18

---

B-Rex wrote:

buzzard wrote:

I know for CERTAIN that Tommy John (my 4th cousin, BTW) is not LDS. He was active in some evangelical athletes organization. Lasorda is an Italian catholic, if Garvey, Cey, or Monday were members, their personal behavior would lead us to hope no one found out.

Steve Martin, on the other hand, I heard from my cousins girlfriends roommate, is taking the discussions....

This is what you get for cheering for the Dodgers. Go Angels! The only red I'll ever wear.

Buzzard...If the name fits!

"Buzzard" is a term of endearment from my lovely spouse. I have been her sweet Buzzard for 28 years. So yes, the name fits. :lol:

=====

Re:Charlie Hough LDS?

Posted by mormonrasta - 2008/03/10 11:48

---

I don't know if Charlie Hough is LDS, but he didn't make the unofficial all-Mormon baseball team.

<http://umpbump.com/press/umpbump-presents-the-all-mormon-baseball-team/>

=====

Re:Charlie Hough LDS?

Posted by CougarPeasant - 2008/03/10 12:09

---

Great find MR. I didn't know upper deck Eck was LDS. (Was/is) Nor did I know about Jeff Kent either.

I knew about Killebrew and the Laws, but that did turn into an impressive team.

The best lines of the articles however were:

They're just a couple of converts away from fixing their middle relief problem.

The All Mormon Team is definitely a playoff contender. And they'd definitely beat the Canadians.

=====

Re:Charlie Hough LDS?

Posted by Real.Men.Wear.Blue - 2008/03/10 13:47

---

Kyle Farnsworth was in my ward growing up. Although a little cocky, he was a relatively nice guy. His family was not agreeable, however. His parents once threatened to leave the church unless the YM leader/bishop allowed him to play on the ward basketball team even though he also played varsity basketball on the high school team. My understanding is that he is not active anymore.

=====

Re:Charlie Hough LDS?

Posted by craigoscarsen - 2008/03/10 16:27

---

I met Harmon Killebrew in 2002 and he mentioned that he doesn't attend church anymore but a couple of his kids/grandkids have attended BYU.

=====

Re:Charlie Hough LDS?

Posted by mountincougar - 2008/03/10 17:01

---

While I dare say I have been a Dodger fan longer than most on this site have been drawing breath ....ok ok ok a long time.... I have never heard that Charlie Hough was LDS. We had Dodger tickets for over 20 years and watched him play for a good while. Not to brag..(ok maybe a little) but we were there the night Kurt Gibson hit his walkoff HR in WS. Very cool. Anyway, I don't think he was LDS but am not sure.

PS I do have a LP (that is vinyl you discheads) replay of the Dodgers 1959 World Series against thte Chicago White Sox. Have lost some of the Dodger Blue blood since I moved to Utah 10 years ago.

I did have dinner one time with Dane Iorg when he played for the Cardinals. It followed their game with the Dodgers many years ago. We had a common friend who had played with Dane at BYU; Rich Zinnegar. Dane said Rich was a better hitter than he was but was a pitcher and blew his arm out in the minors. Sorry for rambling!! :)

GO COUGS!!!!

=====

Re:Charlie Hough LDS?

Posted by cougarfan144 - 2008/03/10 17:21

---

mountincougar wrote:

While I dare say I have been a Dodger fan longer than most on this site have been drawing breath ....ok ok ok a long time.... I have never heard that Charlie Hough was LDS. We had Dodger tickets for over 20 years and watched him play for a good while. Not to brag..(ok maybe a little) but we were there the night Kurt Gibson hit his walkoff HR in WS. Very cool. Anyway, I don't think he was LDS but am not sure.

PS I do have a LP (that is vinyl you discheads) replay of the Dodgers 1959 World Series against thte Chicago White Sox. Have lost some of the Dodger Blue blood since I moved to Utah 10 years ago.

I did have dinner one time with Dane Iorg when he played for the Cardinals. It followed their game with the Dodgers many years ago. We had a common friend who had played with Dane at BYU; Rich Zinnegar. Dane said Rich was a better hitter than he was but was a pitcher and blew his arm out in the minors. Sorry for rambling!! :)

GO COUGS!!!!

Me thinks you're trying to tell us you're an oldie. I'm probably on average older than most here but you're making me feel "oh so young". Thanks.

=====

