
Final Bracket Seeding Predictions

Posted by timmyboy - 2008/03/15 22:35

BYU as a #7. I'm convinced they'll get it.

=====

Re:Final Bracket Seeding Predictions

Posted by Gunk - 2008/03/15 22:40

timmyboy wrote:

BYU as a #7. I'm convinced they'll get it.

I certainly hope you are right and I am wrong, but we end up with another 8 seed this year. On paper we're not much better than last year's team, which had an RPI of 18 and we still got an 8 seed. Keep your fingers crossed we don't play another Xavier.

=====

Re:Final Bracket Seeding Predictions

Posted by Methusaleh - 2008/03/16 02:10

9 or 10 seed for the Cougars this year.

=====

Re:Final Bracket Seeding Predictions

Posted by timmyboy - 2008/03/16 02:11

On another note - some people have pointed out that UNLV will probably end up with our higher seed than BYU based on their RPI - this is highly unlikely. While UNLV does have a 23 RPI and BYU a 24 at the moment, BYU is almost guaranteed a higher RPI after the North Carolina - Clemson game tomorrow - whether UNC wins or not. Plus, UNLV has zero quality wins - except two over BYU at home. BYU has a HUGE neutral location win over Louisville. BYU gets a 7, UNLV an 8 or 9.

=====

Re:Final Bracket Seeding Predictions

Posted by MizzouCoug - 2008/03/16 04:47

We'll get a 7. We have some national love this year unlike this year. That makes all the difference for an at-large. Any other year it'd be an 8 or 9 at this point.

=====

Re:Final Bracket Seeding Predictions

Posted by ammoncougar1 - 2008/03/16 06:52

I am an eternal optimist. Unfortunately I didn't see the game last night because of that one obvious reason. I don't know how "hot" we look heading into the tourney. My bottom line is while realistically we get a seven, I truly believe we get a six. Upsets happen all over in conference tourneys. (If you can really call that an upset with the homecourt) I bet there are still a few teams ahead of us who have lost so ranking-wise we shouldn't fall too far. Top 24 logically equals a "6". Worst case in my book is a 7. With a 6 or 7 we have a nice chance to advance.

Go Cougs!!!

=====

Re:Final Bracket Seeding Predictions

Posted by imuakahuku - 2008/03/16 09:16

Lunardi has BYU as an 8 now playing KS St in round one. He put UNLV as an 8 too v Davidson.

<http://sports.espn.go.com/ncb/bracketology>

Re:Final Bracket Seeding Predictions

Posted by MizzouCoug - 2008/03/16 09:26

I wonder how we'd do against that Beasley kid...

Re:Final Bracket Seeding Predictions

Posted by scott715 - 2008/03/16 10:57

I would prefer a 10 instead of that 8. I don't want UCLA in the second round. Yes you get a harder first round game but that is winnable

Re:Final Bracket Seeding Predictions

Posted by Gunk - 2008/03/16 14:29

scott715 wrote:

I would prefer a 10 instead of that 8. I don't want UCLA in the second round. Yes you get a harder first round game but that is winnable

At this point I would take the easiest first round opponent possible regardless of the possible 2nd round opponent. We seem to have a hard time getting past the first round.

Re:Final Bracket Seeding Predictions

Posted by ammoncougar1 - 2008/03/16 16:44

ammoncougar1 wrote:

I am an eternal optimist. Unfortunately I didn't see the game last night because of that one obvious reason. I don't know how "hot" we look heading into the tourney. My bottom line is while realistically we get a seven, I truly believe we get a six. Upsets happen all over in conference tourneys. (If you can really call that an upset with the homecourt) I bet there are still a few teams ahead of us who have lost so ranking-wise we shouldn't fall too far. Top 24 logically equals a "6". Worst case in my book is a 7. With a 6 or 7 we have a nice chance to advance.

Go Cougs!!!

Okay....so optimism didn't work! :blush:

Beat A&M!

Go Cougs!!!

Re:Final Bracket Seeding Predictions

Posted by cougs_dawgs - 2008/03/16 17:03

I think if playing on Sundays was not an issue we would of had a better seed. Just sucks that BYU got screwed again. At least they will play in Anaheim. My Dawgs is having to play Xavier in DC.

Go Cougs

Go Dawgs

=====