

---

cruiser strikes again

Posted by CougarPeasant - 2008/03/26 13:40

---

cruiser has a great write up of spring practice so far over at Cougar Legion.

I am as excited as ever for BYU Football after reading his article today. Here's hoping to a 2001 with a 2006/7 finish!

=====

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by Cougarageous - 2008/03/26 14:07

---

As usual, an excellent post by Cruiser! As I'm reading it though I keep thinking, the further I get into it, "Oh no, I'm getting closer to the end." The only real issue, or problem, I have with Cruiser's post is that they all end. :laugh: Cruiser, if you're out there and reading this, a little word of advice...try to create a post that has no end. ;) It drives me crazy that your posts have to end and then I have to wait, sometimes up to a week for the next morsel of Cougar News. :laugh:

Keep them coming Cruiser!

Go Cougs!

=====

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by Hengst - 2008/03/26 14:18

---

I can't help but think the article is a little overly optimistic. . . . I hope it's true though . . .

=====

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by MojoCougar - 2008/03/26 14:26

---

If that doesn't get you fired up for next Fall, you're not a cougar fan! Thanks Cruiser!!!

=====

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by Cougarageous - 2008/03/26 14:27

---

Hengst wrote:

I can't help but think the article is a little overly optimistic. . . . I hope it's true though . . .

Kind of like the gospel, huh? :laugh:

At this time of year though it just sounds good to be talking football again. :) Oh wait, some of us never really stopped.:laugh:

Go Cougs!

=====

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by Hawkwing - 2008/03/26 15:25

---

That

=====

---

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by MizzouCoug - 2008/03/26 15:41

---

Awesome stuff. Here's to hoping that our dream of dishing out pain to the big boys will come true.

=====

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by LaytonCougar - 2008/03/26 15:41

---

Hengst wrote:

I can't help but think the article is a little overly optimistic. . . . I hope it's true though . . .

Me too. Don't get your hopes up to high. It seems like when we do something happens and our heart's get ripped out. Don't get me wrong, I think were going to have a great year, but I don't want to be talking people back off the ledge IF we lose a game.....)

=====

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by Detmer Forever - 2008/03/26 18:00

---

Amen Cruiser! Can I get a hallelujah up in here!?

=====

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by StatCougar - 2008/03/26 18:32

---

hallelujah.

=====

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by Hipsdamann - 2008/03/26 20:25

---

Wow I CANNOT BREATHE! Amazing article cruiser. I sure hope this is the real deal, I have my doubts though. NO you know what I DON'T. With our boys and our amazing coaching staff. ANYTHING IS POSSIBLE.

=====

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by Sage - 2008/03/26 21:40

---

If you have been following the scorecards of those who report on practices TBS and Potkey

How does one read Potkey? Where do you find him?

=====

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by runbyu1 - 2008/03/26 21:41

---

Cougarageous wrote:

As usual, an excellent post by Cruiser! As I'm reading it though I keep thinking, the further I get into it, "Oh no, I'm getting closer to the end." The only real issue, or problem, I have with Cruiser's post is that they all end. :laugh: Cruiser, if you're out there and reading this, a little word of advice...try to create a post that has no end. ;)

---

Ha ha! I busted up laughing out loud when I read this. I guess the thought had never occurred to me of a post that had no end! It goes on and on my friends...

Karma,
G

---

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by akcougar - 2008/03/26 22:02

Sage wrote:

If you have been following the scorecards of those who report on practices TBS and Potkey

How does one read Potkey? Where do you find him?

He's a she, and she reports for the salt lake trib. she does a byu blog that is found about half way down the byu sports page on the right hand side. She does a really good job covering the cougars.

Greg Wrubell once commented that of all the people covering byu, she blogged the most, and most indepth.

---

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by CougarPeasant - 2008/03/26 22:03

He is a she and you can find her blog over at the Salt Lake Tribune. She's the BYU beat writer.

Sage wrote:

If you have been following the scorecards of those who report on practices TBS and Potkey

How does one read Potkey? Where do you find him?

---

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by kenj - 2008/03/26 22:18

WOW Cruiser you are a poet. Your descriptions live and breath. I love it. Go Cougs make the dream come true:laugh:

---

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by njcoug - 2008/03/26 22:48

CougarPeasant wrote:

He is a she and you can find her blog over at the Salt Lake Tribune. She's the BYU beat writer.

Sage wrote:

If you have been following the scorecards of those who report on practices TBS and Potkey

How does one read Potkey? Where do you find him?

She is a fantastic beat writer!!! It took her less than a year to develop sources that trust her and talk to her frequently. I'm surprised another paper hasn't taken notice.

---

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by cougfan1 - 2008/03/27 00:09

---

Sage wrote:

If you have been following the scorecards of those who report on practices TBS and Potkey

How does one read Potkey? Where do you find him?

blogs.sltrib.com/byu

---

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by cruiser - 2008/03/27 00:22

---

Thank you, guys. I'm a little surprised and humbled by the reaction. When I was writing the article, I kept thinking, "This is no good. There's no meat, no specifics."

Either I was wrong, or you guys are REALLY desperate. :) I laughed when I read Cougarageous's post about my articles being too short. This one was almost 2,500 words, by far the longest one I have written so far.

Thank you again. Your kind responses have put a smile on a weary face at the end of a long day.

---

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by Gymcoug318 - 2008/03/27 05:43

---

Wow! That article was amazing! I believe all of that is true! We have some amazing players at the Y! I'm really excited about the whole team this season. The offense will be amazing! I predict the offense will be close to forty points a game. But I'm also really excited about the defense! I know the secondary will be young! But I believe their will be more man to man this year. As well the cougs will blitz more this year. I'm just speculating. But from the recruits that we will have in the secondary this year. Brooks, Pittman, Brandon Bradley, and the new dude Andrew Rich.

I think the defense will be overall better then last years. But I am and I know everyone else is really going to miss Bryan Kehl. The dude is a stud and one amazing athlete! I still remember the air force game last year when the air force running back was ahead of everyone and Bryan Kehl was ten too fifteen yards behind them all. And I just remember Kehl sprinting past everyone even our defensive backs to get the running back before he hit the end zone!:woohoo: It was sweet! Go cougs! I can't wait for the season too start! :evil:

---

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by Cougarageous - 2008/03/27 18:12

---

cruiser wrote:

Thank you, guys. I'm a little surprised and humbled by the reaction. When I was writing the article, I kept thinking, "This is no good. There's no meat, no specifics."

Either I was wrong, or you guys are REALLY desperate. :) I laughed when I read Cougarageous's post about my articles being too short. This one was almost 2,500 words, by far the longest one I have written so far.

Thank you again. Your kind responses have put a smile on a weary face at the end of a long day.

Actually this was a good sized post, but it just leaves us wanting more. :laugh: Keep them coming Cruiser because they are much appreciated.

I remember when I was in high school and watched the movie Braveheart in the theater for the first of like four times. As I watched it, the movie kept me on the edge of me seat, right up to the very end when William Wallace was having his guts pulled out while laying on the executioners table. During the whole time he had been tortured he said nothing and made no noise but as his guts were being spilled onto the table in which he lay he struggled to say something to the executioner who had been mocking him through the whole ordeal. As the executioner raised his hand to silence the crowd, who by this time was pleading for William Wallace to be granted mercy, by telling them that the prisoner wished to say something. Of course the crowd and executioner were thinking that William Wallace was going to ask for mercy which then would allow him a swift and pain free death by having his head cut off. With the crowd quiet William Wallace with all the strength he could muster yelled "FREEEEEEEDOOOOOOM!" with his dying breath. It was at this point in the movie my friends and I felt like standing up and yelling the exact same thing. It was that powerful. :)

---

That's what your post was sort of like. After i read it I wanted to shout, "Goooooooooooo, Coooooooouuuuugaaaaaars!" at the top of my lungs, I felt like tackling something, or punting a football...something... anything, because I was so juiced. Unfortunately for me, my wife was napping on the couch and so I couldn't yell. The only thing close enough for me to tackle were my two little girls and so that was out of the question. So I went outside thinking I would find something to punt and all I could find was my neighbors dog, which I knew he wouldn't approve of. So needless to say I had all this energy and nothing to do with it. :laugh:

Oh please, let fall get here soon. :woohoo:

Go Cougs!

---

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by cruiser - 2008/03/27 19:18

---

Cougarageous wrote:Actually this was a good sized post, but it just leaves us wanting more. :laugh: Keep them coming Cruiser because they are much appreciated.

I remember when I was in high school and watched the movie Braveheart in the theater for the first of like four times. As I watched it, the movie kept me on the edge of me seat, right up to the very end when William Wallace was having his guts pulled out while laying on the executioners table. During the whole time he had been tortured he said nothing and made no noise but as his guts were being spilled onto the table in which he lay he struggled to say something to the executioner who had been mocking him through the whole ordeal. As the executioner raised his hand to silence the crowd, who by this time was pleading for William Wallace to be granted mercy, by telling them that the prisoner wished to say something. Of course the crowd and executioner were thinking that William Wallace was going to ask for mercy which then would allow him a swift and pain free death by having his head cut off. With the crowd quiet William Wallace with all the strength he could muster yelled "FREEEEEEEDOOOOOOM!" with his dying breath. It was at this point in the movie my friends and I felt like standing up and yelling the exact same thing. It was that powerful. :)

That's what your post was sort of like. After i read it I wanted to shout, "Goooooooooooo, Coooooooouuuuugaaaaaars!" at the top of my lungs, I felt like tackling something, or punting a football...something... anything, because I was so juiced. Unfortunately for me, my wife was napping on the couch and so I couldn't yell. The only thing close enough for me to tackle were my two little girls and so that was out of the question. So I went outside thinking I would find something to punt and all I could find was my neighbors dog, which I knew he wouldn't approve of. So needless to say I had all this energy and nothing to do with it. :laugh:

Oh please, let fall get here soon. :woohoo:

Go Cougs!

You've got me cracking up again, Cougarageous. Karma for not punting the dog.

---

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by Ball4 - 2008/03/28 15:49

---

Cruiser,

I have read on a few boards about this article and the responses are all the same. IT'S THE BUZZ OF BYU BOARDS THIS WEEK.

Karma to you for keeping the Glory of BYU football alive during this Spring and off-season. That is an article I have saved and will be reading once a week.

Do you think it would be all right to use it as the HT message next month?:lol:

---

=====

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by splitbamboo - 2008/04/01 11:50

---

I thought I'd just use this thread to talk about the travesty that is Cruiser's April FOOLISH day post at cougarlegion.com. I just can't see the value of the paranoia in the BYU football department.

What did Cruiser post that could anyway be construed to harm the team. Maybe a little marcom would be just the ticket to coming out of obscurity and being a program of national prominence.

I got excited about this site when I found it last spring. Then we got word from Cruiser that would not be posting here out of respect for team wishes. Then we start to get the better formulated articles on cougarlegion and I got excited again. Now my hopes of any decent inside information are dashed. What does Potkey have over Cruiser except a license to write (at least we still have Potkey).

=====

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by bengel - 2008/04/01 11:56

---

Given that today is April 1, I don't know whether to take Cruiser's post on Cougar Legion seriously or not. I sincerely hope it's an April Fool's joke. Cruiser has provided some of the best insights into BYU football available anywhere.

=====

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by Hengst - 2008/04/01 12:16

---

splitbamboo wrote:

I thought I'd just use this thread to talk about the travesty that is Cruiser's April FOOLISH day post at cougarlegion.com. I just can't see the value of the paranoia in the BYU football department.

What did Cruiser post that could anyway be construed to harm the team. Maybe a little marcom would be just the ticket to coming out of obscurity and being a program of national prominence.

I got excited about this site when I found it last spring. Then we got word from Cruiser that would not be posting here out of respect for team wishes. Then we start to get the better formulated articles on cougarlegion and I got excited again. Now my hopes of any decent inside information are dashed. What does Potkey have over Cruiser except a license to write (at least we still have Potkey).

yeah, it's pretty ridiculous he isn't really saying much that the media don't say, except that his insights are more homers and opinion laden. I'm just surprised they found out who he was to even contact him.

=====

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by Pwride - 2008/04/01 12:42

---

They still don't know who on earth Cruiser is, trust me. He's like Batman. They "think" they know, but based on comments they've made to me, they have no idea.

That being said, it's not a joke (just happened to land on April 1st.) We'll continue our coverage of BYU football, just without Cruiser's posts.

=====

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by CougarPeasant - 2008/04/01 12:47

---

Pwride wrote:

They still don't know who on earth Cruiser is, trust me. He's like Batman. They "think" they know, but based on comments they've made to me, they have no idea.

That being said, its not a joke (just happened to land on April 1st.) We'll continue our coverage of BYU football, just without Cruiser's posts.

This is the cruelest of April Fool's joke in that it is no joke. A favorite son of ours has been cut down in his prime. Oh the HUMANITY!!!

=====

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by Yndian - 2008/04/01 13:34

---

Pwride wrote:

They still don't know who on earth Cruiser is, trust me. He's like Batman. They "think" they know, but based on comments they've made to me, they have no idea.

That's freaking awesome, based on how long he's been posting (at Cougar Legion and here).

Thanks for the memories, Cruiser.

=====

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by rjcougar - 2008/04/01 13:57

---

What post got the wrath of Reynolds? I have been reading all I can at cougarlegion but can't find anything.

=====

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by Pwride - 2008/04/01 14:02

---

Just verified that they have no idea.

=====

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by lawman - 2008/04/01 17:19

---

akcougar wrote:

Sage wrote:

If you have been following the scorecards of those who report on practices TBS and Potkey

How does one read Potkey? Where do you find him?

He's a she, and she reports for the salt lake trib. she does a byu blog that is found about half way down the byu sports page on the right hand side. She does a really good job covering the cougars.

Greg Wrubell once commented that of all the people covering byu, she blogged the most, and most indepth.

Agreed. I love reading Rhiannon Potkey's blog! Sometimes, it's the first thing I read every morning. She gives good coverage of all of BYU's sports and has interesting posts. The thing I love is that there is fresh stuff every morning and sometimes the blog is updated a couple of times a day.

=====

---

Re:cruiser strikes again

Posted by MrRoboto - 2008/04/02 00:34

---

This is @$#!%^@*. Cruiser hasn't revealed anything harmful to the team. Keep posting Cruiser. You can change your name. Be Batman or Resurc or something. Maybe we can use secret codes for the players. Max can be Mr. Headroom and Collie can be Lassie. I'm all for supporting Bronco, but we've got to have something to cheer about in april.

=====