My Prognostication

I was just curious, now that spring practice is coming to an end at the U, if Uncle Rico is going to remain consistant and claim one of his position groups will be "The best in the country". In '06 he claimed his QB's were the best and in '07 he said the same thing about his WR's. After reading an article about the RB's in the D-news today, my prognostication is it shouldn't be long before Dim-whit tells us all how great his RB's are and how they rival everyone in the MWC if not the nation. After all, it worked great with his QB's and WR's.

I was going to ask the same thing. ;) You nailed it, at some point KWhitt will undoubtedly make some reference to his corps of running backs as "the" or "one of" the best in the country. Is Paul Bunyan still at the U or did Mr Grady graduate?

He may go with qb's again, or maybe just "running game", since BJ and that other guy whose name I can't remember at the moment, are more runners than passers.

Speaking of that other guy, there are some ute fans that are already calling for him to start over BJ this year, lol

That other guy, Louse or something like that, has a concusssion from Spring Ball, but was looking better than BJ at times according to the SLTrib today. http://www.sltrib.com/collegesports/ci\_8941865

Another glassjaw takes a seat.

Go Cougs!!!

And he is better than BJ, IMO. But that's not saying much.
