
I NEED TO VENT A BIT HERE!!!

If you're up by three points with under 10 seconds left in the game, you FOUL!!!

GAAAAHHHH! The Suns don't DESERVE to win if they can't figure that out in EITHER regulation OR overtime!!!

I hear you.

I didn't feel good about going into overtime with Amare, Shaq and Diaw with 5 fouls each, and I liked our chances even less going into double OT without Amare.

Nash's three at the end was AMAZING, too bad they didn't bother guarding Ginobli (as if he would do anything but drive it straight to the basket. He's Manu freaking Ginobli. What do you expect him to do?).

Thanks Yndian for humoring me. I was just sitting here shaking my head the ENTIRE TIME!!! And then they even get a second chance in overtime to recompense themselves, AND THEY SIT THERE WITH A _____ UP THEIR _____!!!!!!!

And even if you're STUPID and don't realize you should foul, WHAT ARE YOU DOING GUARDING THE KEY?!?!?!? You know SOMEBODY'S gonna be shooting from outside!!!!

GAAAAAAHHHHHHHHH!!!!

I agree completely. Phoenix had that game and lost it with STUPID coaching. Foul right on the inbounds and give them the 2 free throws, you're still up by 1, even if they make both. For crying out loud!

Talk about frustrating.

...hopefully the Jazz can do better

On the other hand, the Spurs had to depend on a Tim Duncan three pointer to win. Not exactly something you can depend on.

Conceded, but STILL!!! JABBA the FREAKIN' HUT could be spotting up and YOU STILL FOUL BEFORE HE GETS THE CHANCE TO JACK ONE UP!!!

The only 3-pointer that is GUARANTEED never to go down is the one that NEVER GOES UP IN THE FIRST PLACE!!!

Danny Ainge got that one right with the Celtics! YOU FOUL DOMINIQUE WILKINS BEFORE HE HAS A CHANCE TO PUT UP THE THREE!!!

Hey if your a suns fan, don't worry be happy.

It took double overtime and a prayer 3 pointer from Tim Duncan (has he ever made a 3 before in his entire nba career?) for the Spurs to put phoenix away AT HOME.

I think phoenix takes this series. Especially if Shaq can stay out of foul trouble.

The funny part is that I'm really not a huge fan. I was a big fan when I was a kid during the Barkeley stretch (I know, he's kindof an idiot, and the media often painted him a jerk, but he really cared about the fans. Good friends of mine met him once at a hotel, away from all the cameras etc, and he chatted with them, signed a whole mess of things for their kids, and held their baby girl for pictures. Greatest guy, they said). Annyway, plus, Ainge was on the team at the time, yeah, I'm that big a Y homer...

As for today's team, no real connection to them, but maybe it's just that I'm such an underdog-type guy. I know, how could a team with Nash, Stoudemire, O'Neal, et al. be such an underdog, but they're the perennial can't-quite-get-over-the-hump team, SO tantalizingly close every year, yet so far when the final buzzer sounds. Almost reminds me of my poor besmitten HEADCASE of a Cougar Basketball team!!!

DANG IT! NOW I'M MAD ABOUT THAT AGAIN!!!

If it makes you feel any better I felt the same way when Memphis was up 3 with 8 seconds left in regulation in the recent NCAA NC game. I was very sad about that game.

EXACTLY!!! I said that PRECISE thing to my wife at the end of regulation!

Honestly, another thing it reminds me of is the Boise State BCS game. (I know, :unsure: , just follow me on this one though...) The end of regulation my Dad and I were SCREAMING at the TV to go for two. You've proven that you can run with the best, but face it, they've got Big 12 bodies and you're walk-on farm boys. DO NOT attempt to beat them at the IDIOTIC GOALLINE-STAND GAME they call College Football overtime. And we were proven right when ONE PLAY took Oklahoma into the endzone, and it took TWO fourth downs (iirc), and every trick-play in the book (except one ;)) just to get Boise their touchdown, and they were very fortunate even to get it. LUCKILY, Pederson (or whatever his name is), learned from his mistake the first time and went for it all.

Unfortunately for the Suns, their IDIOT coach apparently doesn't LEARN from his mistakes.
