
Question

So we just switched to DirecTV and I heard earlier this year that they picked up the MTN. Is it true or is it just rumor still?

It's true (and well-documented on places like ksl.com, deseretnews.com, etc. in case you want to read how it went down) but it hasn't happened yet. In other words, they signed an agreement, but the channel probably won't air on DirecTV until August.

It's true. It'll be on by some time in August at the latest.

Late August most likely, like August 27-30. And it may be on a sports tier.

It is going to be by August 1, and it will be available on even the most basic package.

I haven't heard a specific date, but I have heard (from several sources, including DirecTV and Craig Thompson) that it will be considered a local channel in the "footprint of the MWC" and will be on the most basic lineup. I know that for a fact that it will be in Utah.

Hmm. I was hoping for some information on the channel package it'd be in for those of us in "the fild." :laugh:
