According to Fox News, nearly 100 students at SDSU were just arrested on drugs and weapons charges. This massive arrest came after a five month undercover operation.

Can you even fathom something like this happening at BYU? No wonder that the Aztecs have no support. In addition to the team being awful, the fans are apparently too busy getting stoned and running guns to fill the stands.

umm, this could probably happen at most college campuses (well, I didn't read the article but I'm sure if the police did a sweep up at the U or just about any other school--maybe even BYU--they could probably find 100 kids with drugs) it'll be interesting to hear if athletes, or how many were involved as well. For a 5 month co-op it's likely that more than just simple gateway drugs were being used, when names get released perhaps the sdsu professors will get their wish and football will be removed

I agree! When I was at the Y I drank, behind close doors of course. And was shocked at the number of other students that did so as well as other things.

Its unfortunate, i know, and do regret being such a bad influence on others!!

I know the feeling. I remember sneaking a couple diet cokes into my dorm room... My roommate thought I was on the turnpike to Hell (car pool lane).

Only 100? thats suprising.

Like Hengst said, this could be done at any college INCLUDING BYU. not suprising at all actually, this kind of reminds me of a funny story. Does anybody remember the BYU student who was arrested for making ecstasy in DT? I was a freshman at the time (it was in the fall of 2001). I was walking around the campus one day and noticed that the headline of the daily universe said something about one "eric Lopez" who was arrested for said crime. I was in shock (that was my roommates name!). Fortunately, when I saw the picture I found that it was a different eric lopez. Still pretty funny though.
