Well, our Cougars won again (on the road), beating Colorado 10-5.

Next up, the national championship tournament Sweet Sixteen starts Tuesday May 13th. I don't know who we'll be playing though.

BYU plays Boston College in the first round. This is a rematch of a quarter-final game from last year.

If higher seeds win out, BYU would play Simon Fraser in the second round, a team BYU beat 17-11 earlier in the season. That would lead to a semi-final match-up against Michigan.

Seems a reasonable seeding. The three teams seeded above us all beat us this year. Hopefully the team is peaking at the right time. My nephew from Downey CA was on the team his first year at BYU. He's in the 2nd year of a mission to Germany right now. I never knew much about the sport until he started playing. Still just learning the rules and strategy though.

I know a kid who is a freshman on the team now. He is a beast at around 6'6" 235 lbs. Last year in high school, he was ripping shots at the goal that were so hard and so fast that he broke one kid's stick, and another's cup in the same game!

I sure hope you mean the cup on the end of the stick... :lol:

My son just started lacrosse this year. How does one "follow" college lacrosse? Is it televised?

The DI tourney started this past weekend. All games are televised on ESPNU until the Final 4, then games switch over to ESPN2/ESPN.

If you want to follow BYU, check out www.mcla.us. Once the tournament gets to the semis, you can buy a webcast of the semis and finals. The Y should get through the first two rounds without much trouble. Michigan in the semis will be a great game. On the other side of the bracket, either Chapman, Arizona State or Minn-Duluth should get through.

BYU beat Boston College in a close match 8-7. Next they play Simon Fraser tomorrow. BYU gave Simon Fraser their only loss (17-11) in BYU's fourth game of the season back on Feb 23rd.

BYU slipped past Simon Fraser 10-9 today to reach the semi-finals. After trailing most of the game, BYU ran off four straight scores to take a 10-8 lead and then held on for the win. BYU's teamwork came through for this game as they tallied seven assists on ten goals.

BYU will play Michigan in one semi-final.
ASU will play Chapman in the other semi-final.

Michigan beat us 12-9 at their place on 3/1/2008 for our worst loss of the season.

We beat ASU 17-15 at home on 3/11/2008.

We lost to Chapman 16-15 at their place on 2/16/2008 (2nd game of the year).

BYU lost this evening to Michigan in the MCLA National Championship Semi-Final match 11-7. :(

It was a tough match for BYU. Michigan played a much more physical game than BYU (10 penalties vs 2 for BYU). Despite Michigan having 7.5 minutes of penalty time and BYU only 1 minute, BYU was not able to capitalize on the advantage.

Overall it was a very good season. The team represented BYU in a fine manner. :woohoo:

The other semi-final Chapman over ASU 18-15. It was an interesting game where ASU took a 6-0 lead in the first quarter. Chapman came back strong with a 14-3 run over the next 2.5 quarters. Great game. The tournament seeding had Michigan #1 and Chapman #2. Looks like the seeding was pretty good.
