

---

Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by Mars - 2008/05/10 02:46

---

Yes, Jazz fans, your own Karl Malone impregnated a girl when she was only thirteen years old. That's statutory rape. And yet he's a local hero to many.

<http://sports.espn.go.com/espn/page2/story?page=hill/080507>

Quote: "Roger Clemens' alleged seedy indiscretions -- including a possible sexual relationship with a 15-year-old -- are nothing compared to what Malone has done. Malone reportedly impregnated Bell's mother when she was 13 and he was a sophomore at Louisiana Tech. Malone is lucky Chris Hansen wasn't around and he didn't have to answer to the authorities."

=====

Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by bengel - 2008/05/10 06:18

---

I don't know where Malone and Bell's mother had intercourse, but the jurisdictions with which I'm familiar presume a 13 year old is incapable of consenting to intercourse. Therefore, the law classifies the act as rape.

I read the quote from Jemele Hill's story in Mars' post. Then I read the entire story. Hill said,

"What matters most is that Bell triumphed in spite of how his father behaved."

Let's focus on that, rather than on Malone's inappropriate behavior.

=====

Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by Metallicat - 2008/05/10 07:28

---

This does look VERY bad for Karl. Good for Bell for being able to move past it.

=====

Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by BigL - 2008/05/10 08:58

---

I've learned to admire athletes only for what they do on the field because they often fall short in their values.

=====

Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by Tyler1830 - 2008/05/10 10:03

---

To quote the bard, R. Kelly, "My mind's telling me no, but my body, my body's telling me yes!"

=====

Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by Conosticator - 2008/05/10 10:49

---

Being from the Portland area this greatly disappoints me to learn the Karl Malone actually did qualify to be a dues paying member of the Portland JailBlazers. What a lost opportunity for Portland. :S

=====

---

Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by MajorCougar - 2008/05/12 09:26

---

It's interesting this story comes out now, after what, 25 years later?

I'll withhold judgement until until a verdict is reached in court. Otherwise, a man is presumed innocent until guilty.

I would still hold Karl Malone in high regard for the things he has done as a Jazz player and citizen of the state of Utah.

=====

Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by imuakahuku - 2008/05/12 09:56

---

MajorCougar wrote:

It's interesting this story comes out now, after what, 25 years later?

I'll withhold judgement until until a verdict is reached in court. Otherwise, a man is presumed innocent until guilty.

I would still hold Karl Malone in high regard for the things he has done as a Jazz player and citizen of the state of Utah.

You forgot to add "in a court of law". But since this is not a court of law I would go on the facts as have been laid out.

Son (Demetrius Bell - a recent top draft pick for the Buffalo Bills football team) is his son.

Mother (Gloria bell) is 12 to 13 years older than her son.

Karl was 20 yrs old and a college sophomore at the time

That's all I can come up with I guess I would drop the charges at this point. :dry:

=====

Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by MajorCougar - 2008/05/12 10:14

---

imuakahuku wrote:

MajorCougar wrote:

It's interesting this story comes out now, after what, 25 years later?

I'll withhold judgement until until a verdict is reached in court. Otherwise, a man is presumed innocent until guilty.

I would still hold Karl Malone in high regard for the things he has done as a Jazz player and citizen of the state of Utah.

You forgot to add "in a court of law". But since this is not a court of law I would go on the facts as have been laid out.

Son (Demetrius Bell - a recent top draft pick for the Buffalo Bills football team) is his son.

Mother (Gloria bell) is 12 to 13 years older than her son.

Karl was 20 yrs old and a college sophomore at the time

That's all I can come up with I guess I would drop the charges at this point. :dry:

Again, I don't know all the details of the story (and, not being a lawyer), I will not pass judgement until done so in a Court of Law.

However, has a paternity test been done? Just because someone says/confesses they are the father/son, does not necessarily make it so. Does DNA confirm this? (Again, if it has been established, I haven't heard that yet).

What role was the girl playing? Without making excuses, I wonder why she was hanging out where college-aged kids hang out. Did Karl know her true age then? Has not everyone seen some 13-year-olds today that look 3-5 years older than they really are?

Again, why is this coming out 25 years later? (I'm going with the adage, "Follow the money") Something just isn't adding up here, IMO. Is there an "agenda"?

Again, I'm not trying to make excuses, but we just don't have all the facts yet. Let's wait and see what comes out in a Court of Law, rather than, like the media, come to a pre-conceived opinion.

---

=====

Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by jhw5 - 2008/05/12 10:29

---

Tyler1830 wrote:

To quote the bard, R. Kelly, "My mind's telling me no, but my body, my body's telling me yes!"

Appropriate indeed, as R. Kelly's trial for having and videotaping sex with an underage girl is about to start in the Chicago-area (6 years after charges were filed).

=====

Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by Conosticator - 2008/05/12 10:51

---

jhw5 wrote:

Tyler1830 wrote:

To quote the bard, R. Kelly, "My mind's telling me no, but my body, my body's telling me yes!"

Appropriate indeed, as R. Kelly's trial for having and videotaping sex with an underage girl is about to start in the Chicago-area (6 years after charges were filed).

Is Malone's case beyond the statute of limitations?

=====

Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by NorthernCougar - 2008/05/12 10:57

---

Ah, the joys of libel. I hope that Karl Malone, or someone who knows his lawyer, doesn't frequent this board. Regardless of his what actually happened, Mars has now written an unproven and inflammatory statement about someone very much in the public eye. Hopefully you can prove this because as far as the law is concerned it is all alleged at this point.

Good luck with that...

=====

Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by Mars - 2008/05/12 11:48

---

MajorCougar wrote:

Again, I don't know all the details of the story (and, not being a lawyer), I will not pass judgement until done so in a Court of Law. However, has a paternity test been done? Just because someone says/confesses they are the father/son, does not necessarily make it so. Does DNA confirm this? Again, if it has been established, I haven't heard that yet).

Some of you obviously didn't read the article. Shame on you (MajorCougar, NorthernCougar) being being lazy and asking questions that I already linked the answer to.

A COURT OF LAW has required Malone to pay $125 Paternity a week since the DNA TEST proved he was the father of the 13-year of girl's child. As you would have known if you hadn't just clicked "reply" before reading.

=====

Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by MajorCougar - 2008/05/12 12:01

---

Mars wrote:

MajorCougar wrote:

---

Again, I don't know all the details of the story (and, not being a lawyer), I will not pass judgement until done so in a Court of Law. However, has a paternity test been done? Just because someone says/confesses they are the father/son, does not necessarily make it so. Does DNA confirm this? Again, if it has been established, I haven't heard that yet).

Some of you obviously didn't read the article. Shame on you (MajorCougar, NorthernCougar) being being lazy and asking questions that I already linked the answer to.

A COURT OF LAW has required Malone to pay $125 Paternity a week since the DNA TEST proved he was the father of the 13-year of girl's child. As you would have known if you hadn't just clicked "reply" before reading.

Again, fine - paternity test filed. But what was a 13-year-old doing hanging out with college students? Did Karl really know her true age? Why now (25 years after the fact), as opposed to any time earlier... This may be some reasons why this is paying a paternity suit, rather than a court-decided matter.

He made a mistake (apparently); what he is done in the community of Salt Lake and for the NBA are still great accomplishments. If the issue has been resolved with paying the suit, (and no legal COA is to follow), then why are we still "ooing" and "awing" all over it. It's past history.

---

Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by Mars - 2008/05/12 12:16

---

MajorCougar wrote:

Again, fine - paternity test filed. But what was a 13-year-old doing hanging out with college students? Did Karl really know her true age? Why now (25 years after the fact), as opposed to any time earlier... This may be some reasons why this is paying a paternity suit, rather than a court-decided matter. He made a mistake (apparently); what he is done in the community of Salt Lake and for the NBA are still great accomplishments. If the issue has been resolved with paying the suit, (and no legal COA is to follow), then why are we still "ooing" and "awing" all over it. It's past history.

Seriously- What's wrong with you? A 20-year old taking advantage of a 13-year old girl is a TERRIBLE thing (that's why they have laws against it, and why 400-or-so children were abducted by the government in Texas this month)! It's despicable of you to try to pin the fault on the little girl. And decent people who read this article will have to take a second look about seeing Karl Malone as any sort of hero or role model, which from a moral/ethical standpoint he clearly isn't. The article came out because Karl's son who he refuses to have contact with just got taken in the NFL draft last month. Again, which you would know if you had read it.

---

Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by imuakahuku - 2008/05/12 12:42

---

MajorCougar wrote:

imuakahuku wrote:

MajorCougar wrote:

It's interesting this story comes out now, after what, 25 years later?

I'll withhold judgement until until a verdict is reached in court. Otherwise, a man is presumed innocent until guilty.

I would still hold Karl Malone in high regard for the things he has done as a Jazz player and citizen of the state of Utah.

You forgot to add "in a court of law". But since this is not a court of law I would go on the facts as have been laid out.

Son (Demetrius Bell - a recent top draft pick for the Buffalo Bills football team) is his son.

Mother (Gloria bell) is 12 to 13 years older than her son.

Karl was 20 yrs old and a college sophomore at the time

That's all I can come up with I guess I would drop the charges at this point. :dry:

Again, I don't know all the details of the story (and, not being a lawyer), I will not pass judgement until done so in a Court of Law.

However, has a paternity test been done? Just because someone says/confesses they are the father/son, does not necessarily make it so. Does DNA confirm this? (Again, if it has been established, I haven't heard that yet).

What role was the girl playing? Without making excuses, I wonder why she was hanging out where college-aged kids hang out. Did Karl know her true age then? Has not everyone seen some 13-year-olds today that look 3-5 years older than they really are?

---

Again, why is this coming out 25 years later? (I'm going with the adage, "Follow the money") Something just isn't adding up here, IMO. Is there an "agenda"?

Again, I'm not trying to make excuses, but we just don't have all the facts yet. Let's wait and see what comes out in a Court of Law, rather than, like the media, come to a pre-conceived opinion.

From espn

"
His reputation took a hit in 1998 when it was revealed he had been involved in two paternity suits involving women from back home in Louisiana, both cases being settled out of court. Blood test analysis set the probability that Malone was the father of Demetrius Bell at 99.3 percent."

http://sports.espn.go.com/espn/classic/bio/news/story?page=Malone\_Karl

And why is it coming out now? Well his "son" was just drafted by the Buffalo Bills.

<http://sports.espn.go.com/espn/wire?section=nfl&id=3371150>

<http://www.buffalonews.com/sports/columns/story/334471.html>

But my point is that this is the court of public opinion not a court of law. We don't need "all" the facts. I just need the paternity test and the age difference between the mother and the son. I don't need to know any extenuating circumstances or have a "smoking gun". If an official test is confirmed then I can make up my own mind.

Also, I don't think anyone is pressing charges so I don't think you will get "all the facts" through discovery, nor a verdict to fall back on. Just what already exists. The statute of Lim is as follows. He was lucky she wasn't any younger. Under 12 is a capital offense.

La. C.Cr.P. Art. 571

No time limitation - for any crime for which the punishment may be death or life imprisonment.

Art. 571.1

For certain sexual offenses - Time allotted for prosecution, which involves a victim under 17, shall be ten years. This ten-year period begins to run when the victim attains the age of eighteen.

Art. 572

Non-capital offenses:

(1) Six years, for a felony punishable by imprisonment at hard labor;

(2) Four years, for a felony not punishable at hard labor.

I also hold that OJ is a murderer even though he was found "not guilty" by a court of law.

As for Karl, I'm torn because it looks like he got away with stealing a 13 year old girl's virtue and seriously hampered her future all for a moment of self gratification. I have read of a lot of good things that he has done, and I am glad he has grown, but I can't just look the other way. I would need some sort of reaction from him. In other words will he "man up" and take responsibility for his actions?

=====
Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by BoiseBYU - 2008/05/12 13:05

---

MajorCougar wrote:

Mars wrote:

MajorCougar wrote:

Again, I don't know all the details of the story (and, not being a lawyer), I will not pass judgement until done so in a Court of Law. However, has a paternity test been done? Just because someone says/confesses they are the father/son, does not necessarily make it so. Does DNA confirm this? Again, if it has been established, I haven't heard that yet).

---

Some of you obviously didn't read the article. Shame on you (MajorCougar, NorthernCougar) being being lazy and asking questions that I already linked the answer to.

A COURT OF LAW has required Malone to pay $125 Paternity a week since the DNA TEST proved he was the father of the 13-year of girl's child. As you would have known if you hadn't just clicked "reply" before reading.

Again, fine - paternity test filed. But what was a 13-year-old doing hanging out with college students? Did Karl really know her true age? Why now (25 years after the fact), as opposed to any time earlier... This may be some reasons why this is paying a paternity suit, rather than a court-decided matter.

He made a mistake (apparently); what he is done in the community of Salt Lake and for the NBA are still great accomplishments. If the issue has been resolved with paying the suit, (and no legal COA is to follow), then why are we still "ooing" and "awing" all over it. It's past history.

MajorCougar, having sex with a 13 year old is far more than just a mistake; it is a crime and it really does not matter if the 13 "hung out" around older people or not. Whether Malone knew that this 13 year old really was 13 or 14 or 15 or 16 etc is also irrelevant...it is a crime. Malone may have done wonderful things for SLC and the Jazz etc. during his tenure there (he sure did not while he was a Laker), but such good facts do not excuse the conduct

---

Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by Metallicat - 2008/05/12 13:10

BoiseBYU wrote:

MajorCougar wrote:

Mars wrote:

MajorCougar wrote:

Again, I don't know all the details of the story (and, not being a lawyer), I will not pass judgement until done so in a Court of Law. However, has a paternity test been done? Just because someone says/confesses they are the father/son, does not necessarily make it so. Does DNA confirm this? Again, if it has been established, I haven't heard that yet).

Some of you obviously didn't read the article. Shame on you (MajorCougar, NorthernCougar) being being lazy and asking questions that I already linked the answer to.

A COURT OF LAW has required Malone to pay $125 Paternity a week since the DNA TEST proved he was the father of the 13-year of girl's child. As you would have known if you hadn't just clicked "reply" before reading.

Again, fine - paternity test filed. But what was a 13-year-old doing hanging out with college students? Did Karl really know her true age? Why now (25 years after the fact), as opposed to any time earlier... This may be some reasons why this is paying a paternity suit, rather than a court-decided matter.

He made a mistake (apparently); what he is done in the community of Salt Lake and for the NBA are still great accomplishments. If the issue has been resolved with paying the suit, (and no legal COA is to follow), then why are we still "ooing" and "awing" all over it. It's past history.

MajorCougar, having sex with a 13 year old is far more than just a mistake; it is a crime and it really does not matter if the 13 "hung out" around older people or not. Whether Malone knew that this 13 year old really was 13 or 14 or 15 or 16 etc is also irrelevant...it is a crime. Malone may have done wonderful things for SLC and the Jazz etc. during his tenure there (he sure did not while he was a Laker), but such good facts do not excuse the conduct

I would also add that even if she weren't a minor, it is still pathetic. Any "man" who fathers a child and will not even acknowledge the the kid has issues.

---

Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by MajorCougar - 2008/05/12 13:32

Mars wrote:

MajorCougar wrote:

Again, fine - paternity test filed. But what was a 13-year-old doing hanging out with college students? Did Karl really know her true age? Why now (25 years after the fact), as opposed to any time earlier... This may be some reasons why this is paying a paternity suit, rather than a court-decided matter. He made a mistake (apparently); what he is done in the community of Salt Lake and for the NBA are still great accomplishments. If the issue has been resolved with paying the suit, (and no legal COA is to follow), then why are we still "ooing" and "awing" all over it. It's past history.

---

Seriously- What's wrong with you? A 20-year old taking advantage of a 13-year old girl is a TERRIBLE thing (that's why they have laws against it, and why 400-or-so children were abducted by the government in Texas this month)! It's despicable of you to try to pin the fault on the little girl. And decent people who read this article will have to take a second look about seeing Karl Malone as any sort of hero or role model, which from a moral/ethical standpoint he clearly isn't. The article came out because Karl's son who he refuses to have contact with just got taken in the NFL draft last month. Again, which you would know if you had read it.

Again, I'm NOT trying to make excuses, but there are more things from the story than what we are being told. Yes, it's a terrible thing - I'm not discounting that. And do you think that ALL 400 children in the polygamous compound were victims of abuse? (doubtful). As I said, let the issue be resolved in a court of law before passing judgement.

And as terrible as this is, a person makes mistakes. Does that mean that he can't repent/change and be a good role model after that? Everybody should have the benefit of the doubt; everybody makes mistakes.

---

Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by NorthernCougar - 2008/05/12 13:40

Mars wrote:

MajorCougar wrote:

Again, I don't know all the details of the story (and, not being a lawyer), I will not pass judgement until done so in a Court of Law. However, has a paternity test been done? Just because someone says/confesses they are the father/son, does not necessarily make it so. Does DNA confirm this? Again, if it has been established, I haven't heard that yet).

Some of you obviously didn't read the article. Shame on you (MajorCougar, NorthernCougar) being being lazy and asking questions that I already linked the answer to.

A COURT OF LAW has required Malone to pay $125 Paternity a week since the DNA TEST proved he was the father of the 13-year of girl's child. As you would have known if you hadn't just clicked "reply" before reading.

Ah, yes. Pulling the "shame on you" card because you don't know how to respond to what I said. I never once said that Malone wasn't the father. That never was in dispute. Nor did I defend him. It is pretty sad and definitely is a crime for a 20 year old man to have sex with a 13 year old girl.

But it still is libel to call him a rapist until a COURT OF LAW (not sure why we have to shout that) says he is. And I did know that before I clicked reply. Just stating the facts which seem to bother you.

---

Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by imuakahuku - 2008/05/12 14:38

NorthernCougar wrote:

Mars wrote:

MajorCougar wrote:

Again, I don't know all the details of the story (and, not being a lawyer), I will not pass judgement until done so in a Court of Law. However, has a paternity test been done? Just because someone says/confesses they are the father/son, does not necessarily make it so. Does DNA confirm this? Again, if it has been established, I haven't heard that yet).

Some of you obviously didn't read the article. Shame on you (MajorCougar, NorthernCougar) being being lazy and asking questions that I already linked the answer to.

A COURT OF LAW has required Malone to pay $125 Paternity a week since the DNA TEST proved he was the father of the 13-year of girl's child. As you would have known if you hadn't just clicked "reply" before reading.

Ah, yes. Pulling the "shame on you" card because you don't know how to respond to what I said. I never once said that Malone wasn't the father. That never was in dispute. Nor did I defend him. It is pretty sad and definitely is a crime for a 20 year old man to have sex with a 13 year old girl.

But it still is libel to call him a rapist until a COURT OF LAW (not sure why we have to shout that) says he is. And I did know that before I clicked reply. Just stating the facts which seem to bother you.

---

Actually, since Karl IS a public figure he would have to prove malice. But he would also have to prove the statement to be false and that it harmed the his reputation. I think Karl would have a hard time with this one.

---

Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by gordito - 2008/05/12 14:46

---

MajorCougar wrote:

Mars wrote:

MajorCougar wrote:

Again, fine - paternity test filed. But what was a 13-year-old doing hanging out with college students? Did Karl really know her true age? Why now (25 years after the fact), as opposed to any time earlier... This may be some reasons why this is paying a paternity suit, rather than a court-decided matter. He made a mistake (apparently); what he is done in the community of Salt Lake and for the NBA are still great accomplishments. If the issue has been resolved with paying the suit, (and no legal COA is to follow), then why are we still "ooing" and "awing" all over it. It's past history.

Seriously- What's wrong with you? A 20-year old taking advantage of a 13-year old girl is a TERRIBLE thing (that's why they have laws against it, and why 400-or-so children were abducted by the government in Texas this month)! It's despicable of you to try to pin the fault on the little girl. And decent people who read this article will have to take a second look about seeing Karl Malone as any sort of hero or role model, which from a moral/ethical standpoint he clearly isn't. The article came out because Karl's son who he refuses to have contact with just got taken in the NFL draft last month. Again, which you would know if you had read it.

Again, I'm NOT trying to make excuses, but there are more things from the story than what we are being told. Yes, it's a terrible thing - I'm not discounting that. And do you think that ALL 400 children in the polygamous compound were victims of abuse? (doubtful). As I said, let the issue be resolved in a court of law before passing judgement.

And as terrible as this is, a person makes mistakes. Does that mean that he can't repent/change and be a good role model after that? Everybody should have the benefit of the doubt; everybody makes mistakes.

Come on MajorCougar, pull down your Mailman poster. I can pass judgement on this one without a court of law. I don't see why you're so adamant that Malone should not be judged on this one. Also, haven't his seed-sowing ways been documented many times before?

---

Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by stuckinbig10country - 2008/05/12 14:53

---

This is old news, brought up again because his offspring has just been drafted in the NFL. It was brought up in 1998 (I knew it was one of the finals years), when his daughter, Cheryl Ford of the WNBA, was in college.

I am not going to defend Karl for what he did, but he was a different person 15 years after this took place. To call him a rapist is just Mars trying to get the fan base riled up.

Oh, and BoiseBYU, had Malone been healthy the year he was with the Lakers, Kobe would be looking for his 5th ring instead of his 4th ring. Early on that year when they had everybody healthy they were amazing.

---

Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by Mars - 2008/05/12 15:00

---

stuckinbig10country wrote: To call him a rapist is just Mars trying to get the fan base riled up.

And 100% accurate, as multiple other posters in this thread have pointed out.

---

Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

gordito wrote:

MajorCougar wrote:

Mars wrote:

MajorCougar wrote:

Again, fine - paternity test filed. But what was a 13-year-old doing hanging out with college students? Did Karl really know her true age? Why now (25 years after the fact), as opposed to any time earlier... This may be some reasons why this is paying a paternity suit, rather than a court-decided matter. He made a mistake (apparently); what he is done in the community of Salt Lake and for the NBA are still great accomplishments. If the issue has been resolved with paying the suit, (and no legal COA is to follow), then why are we still "ooing" and "awing" all over it. It's past history.

Seriously- What's wrong with you? A 20-year old taking advantage of a 13-year old girl is a TERRIBLE thing (that's why they have laws against it, and why 400-or-so children were abducted by the government in Texas this month)! It's despicable of you to try to pin the fault on the little girl. And decent people who read this article will have to take a second look about seeing Karl Malone as any sort of hero or role model, which from a moral/ethical standpoint he clearly isn't. The article came out because Karl's son who he refuses to have contact with just got taken in the NFL draft last month. Again, which you would know if you had read it.

Again, I'm NOT trying to make excuses, but there are more things from the story than what we are being told. Yes, it's a terrible thing - I'm not discounting that. And do you think that ALL 400 children in the polygamous compound were victims of abuse? (doubtful). As I said, let the issue be resolved in a court of law before passing judgement.

And as terrible as this is, a person makes mistakes. Does that mean that he can't repent/change and be a good role model after that? Everybody should have the benefit of the doubt; everybody makes mistakes.

Come on MajorCougar, pull down your Mailman poster. I can pass judgement on this one without a court of law. I don't see why you're so adamant that Malone should not be judged on this one. Also, haven't his seed-sowing ways been documented many times before?

If you want to pass judgement on him without a Court of Law, that's fine; I'm not going to do it. I'm just saying that we should let a Court of Law convict AND sentence him - we as CBers should be careful about who we "pass judgement" on.

---

Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by NorCalBlue - 2008/05/12 15:41

You know, Major, some people aren't as litigious as average society. Not everything gets "settled in court." It is probably okay for people to get on this medium and express their opinions and share healthy debate without having to go to court about it or rely on past court opinions for their personal opinions.

And for anyone to call that libel or slander is just ignorant.

---

Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by PP3 - 2008/05/13 10:05

Mars wrote:

MajorCougar wrote:

Again, fine - paternity test filed. But what was a 13-year-old doing hanging out with college students? Did Karl really know her true age? Why now (25 years after the fact), as opposed to any time earlier... This may be some reasons why this is paying a paternity suit, rather than a court-decided matter. He made a mistake (apparently); what he is done in the community of Salt Lake and for the NBA are still great accomplishments. If the issue has been resolved with paying the suit, (and no legal COA is to follow), then why are we still "ooing" and "awing" all over it. It's past history.

Seriously- What's wrong with you? A 20-year old taking advantage of a 13-year old girl is a TERRIBLE thing (that's why they have laws against it, and why 400-or-so children were abducted by the government in Texas this month)! It's despicable of you to try to pin the fault on the little girl. And decent people who read this article will have to take a second look about seeing Karl Malone as any sort of hero or role model, which from a moral/ethical standpoint he clearly isn't. The article came out because Karl's son who he refuses to have contact with just got taken in the NFL draft last month. Again, which you would know if you had read it.

---

Hello Mars, easy to see why this would be an emotional issue. It is very wrong for a 20 year old to have sex with a 13 year old, but it does happen, and it happens more in some areas than in others and I think we should take that into consideration before we pass final judgement on Malone, he did not come from a rich, well educated background. There are very few professional basketball players that I would want as a role model for my children. So if you are judging him by a moral role model than no, I say he fails, but if you are judging him relative to other NBA basketball players; the names Kobe Bryant and Wilt Chamberlain come to mind than I would say he is okay. I also have trouble with the idea of criticizing him now for something that happened 20+ years ago. What about forgiving? He does seem to have changed. At least I don't know of any recent claims against him.

=====

Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by imuakahuku - 2008/05/13 11:27

---

Let's put it this way. You have a daughter in the 7th grade. She just had sex with a college sophomore. Will you be okay with it in say 20 years since it happened so long ago? Of course a lot of her classmates (around 8% of them) were active so I guess that would make it more understandable.

And she was hanging out in a place where the college student was. And for goodness sake, she was 13 years old and could take care of herself. So it was her decision and there was nothing you could do about it anyway. She was going to do it eventually. Everybody was doing it, at least in the movies they were.

I don't know, I just can't seem to convince myself to accept any excuse or justification for it. :angry:

She was 13 he was 20. Ask me again in 8 years when my oldest girl is 13 and a 20 year old takes advantage of her and I end up on death row. Maybe I'll have "matured" more by then.

=====

Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by jaga97 - 2008/05/13 12:05

---

imuakahuku wrote:

Let's put it this way. You have a daughter in the 7th grade. She just had sex with a college sophomore. Will you be okay with it in say 20 years since it happened so long ago? Of course a lot of her classmates (around 8% of them) were active so I guess that would make it more understandable.

And she was hanging out in a place where the college student was. And for goodness sake, she was 13 years old and could take care of herself. So it was her decision and there was nothing you could do about it anyway. She was going to do it eventually. Everybody was doing it, at least in the movies they were.

I don't know, I just can't seem to convince myself to accept any excuse or justification for it. :angry:

She was 13 he was 20. Ask me again in 8 years when my oldest girl is 13 and a 20 year old takes advantage of her and I end up on death row. Maybe I'll have "matured" more by then.

They didn't call him the mailman for nothing.

Don't let your daughter go to frat party's telling everyone she's a freshman.

Having sex with anyone before marriage is an abomination. In Vermont it is legal for a 20 year old to have sex with a 10 year old as long as they are married. Vermont should be chuck full of polygamists.

I have a 14 year old niece that can pass as 18. Her parents are very concerned with her double D's and flirty nature.

=====

Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by rackem - 2008/05/13 13:55

---

I'm surprised that Malone isn't manning up more to his responsibility to Bell. Bell seems like a guy who is hurting but too proud to let anyone know. Malone hiding behind his family statement at the end of the article sheds a lot of light on where he is emotionally,

---

I like the Jazz, and have been a fan for along time, I have to say I'm not a Malone fan any more. What he did for the team is one thing, what he's doing for his own flesh and blood is another, family always comes first, always.
As for the rape allegation, I'm unclear, although it sounds correct.
He must have been scared in college and didn't want his actions brought to light as an NBA career was on the horizon.

Man up Malone.

Rackem'

---

=====
Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by imuakahuku - 2008/05/13 14:45

rackem wrote:

I'm surprised that Malone isn't manning up more to his responsibility to Bell. Bell seems like a guy who is hurting but too proud to let anyone know. Malone hiding behind his family statement at the end of the article sheds a lot of light on where he is emotionally,
I like the Jazz, and have been a fan for along time, I have to say I'm not a Malone fan any more. What he did for the team is one thing, what he's doing for his own flesh and blood is another, family always comes first, always.
As for the rape allegation, I'm unclear, although it sounds correct.
He must have been scared in college and didn't want his actions brought to light as an NBA career was on the horizon.

Man up Malone.

Rackem'

that's how I feel. Georgia Bell and her son are the victims in this. Not Karl. I would like to see him man up and take responsibility. It's not about money. It's about family and he is your son Karl. Denying it or refusing to acknowldge it doesn't change a thing. He is flesh of your flesh and blood of your blood.

---

=====
Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by jaga97 - 2008/05/13 15:15

I like Karl Malone. I'm glad my respect for him never had anything to do with his morals. There are only 1 or 2 professional sports figures that I look up to from a moral standpoint.

I love Jim McMahon, but it has nothing to do with how he lives his life off the field.

---

=====
Re:Karl Malone, Rapist

Posted by CrimsonCoug - 2008/05/13 15:25

The "blame the victim" mentality of a few of these posts is disturbing. I don't care if she sequestered herself in his bedroom and was naked and shimmying on his bed, it's clearly wrong. Why is that controversial? Do you think a 13-year-old is really capable of understanding the full implications of impregnation? Certainly not to the level that a 20-year-old should. Maybe Malone didn't know her age, but is it too much to think a fella ought to do a little background check before engaging with a sexual partner?

But it's not Malone's past indiscretions that really bother me; I'm most put off by his refusal now to have anything to do with Bell. Sorry, there doesn't seem to be much "repentance" going on there. Something more may be going on with the family relation--we do just have a piece of one side of the story, but this continued refusal to man up is weak. I wonder if he really is concerned that a rape charge could be brought against him.
Anyone able to figure out how old Cheryl and Daryl's mom was when they were conceived? I wonder if that might be where the difference is.

---

Still, blaming the victim, or insinuating blame for the victim, is disgusting.

=====