
Coughlin Having fun with Brian Kehl

Posted by treck - 2008/05/13 01:20

http://www.giants.com/news/eisen/story.asp?story_id=27111

...the mention is at the end...

Looks like Kehl had a good mini camp and is picking up right where he left off at BYU. I will miss him on Saturday afternoons but WILL sure like watching him on Sundays.

:cheer:

Re:Coughlin Having fun with Brian Kehl

Posted by detmer4prez - 2008/05/13 01:38

Funny, they call him Ryan Kehl.

Re:Coughlin Having fun with Brian Kehl

Posted by Slugger - 2008/05/13 09:20

I had a hunch Kehl would fit in well there. Coughlin is a Sloan-type of coach. He is very disciplined, structured, and doesn't like a bunch of nonsense. He likes coachable guys that play with a team attitude. Kehl fits that mold very well. Good luck BK!

Re:Coughlin Having fun with Brian Kehl

Posted by Conosticator - 2008/05/13 09:31

Slugger wrote:

I had a hunch Kehl would fit in well there. Coughlin is a Sloan-type of coach. He is very disciplined, structured, and doesn't like a bunch of nonsense. He likes coachable guys that play with a team attitude. Kehl fits that mold very well. Good luck BK!

Sounds like a Bronco-type of coach to me.

Re:Coughlin Having fun with Brian Kehl

Posted by snoscythe - 2008/05/13 09:38

detmer4prez wrote:

Funny, they call him Ryan Kehl.

I always took the dropping of the "B" in one's first name as a high compliment. I should know as I am frequently referred to as being "Rad"

Re:Coughlin Having fun with Brian Kehl

Posted by mraven - 2008/05/13 09:44

If you read the Rookie Mini-camp Report for 5.9 you read that Bryan Kehl intercepted a pass during practice. Sounds like he is doing well.

Re:Coughlin Having fun with Brian Kehl

Posted by Ovid - 2008/05/13 10:31

snoscythe wrote:

detmer4prez wrote:

Funny, they call him Ryan Kehl.

I always took the dropping of the "B" in one's first name as a high compliment. I should know as I am frequently referred to as being "Rad"

Way to B...Rad.

You always make my day sno.

=====