
Utes lose another DL

Posted by BYUtx - 2008/05/20 19:24

Isley Filiaga quit the team. This was first discussed on utefans.net and was then brought on both at TBS and cougarboard.

This is from the SL Trib: <http://blogs.sltrib.com/utes/>

Utah's depth at defensive tackle has just gotten a little thinner with an announcement from Utah that sophomore Isley Filiaga has quit the team because of lingering injuries. Filiaga, a 6-foot, 305-pound Timpanogos High graduate who came to Utah via BYU and a mission, started the spring listed No. 1 at nose tackle, but was passed over by Kenape Eliapo by the conclusion of spring practices.

Filiaga had a foot injury that limited his participation, but I know the coaches weren't that happy with his work ethic either, so it's not much of a surprise that he is leaving the program.

When I was going over the depth chart with defensive coordinator Gary Andersen at the end of spring practice he mentioned he could move one or two of his guys outside inside during fall camp, so I wouldn't be surprised if Koa Misi gets some time back at his old spot. I do know the coaches are happy with Lei Talamaivao's development, which will be more important now than ever to help what is turning out to be a very inexperienced looking defensive line.

Don't forget too that the Utes signed Dave Kruger, Paul's younger but not so little brother at 6-5, 265-pounds. He'll be here this season (with plans to go on a mission after 2008) and already is penciled in as the backup to Eliapo at nose tackle. It isn't far fetched to think that the Kruger brothers could be starting alongside one another.

=====

Re:Utes lose another DL

Posted by TimO - 2008/05/20 19:42

he transferred from BYU? i wonder why. Sometimes i feel like we have lots of unlucky injuries during the offseason and the yewts don't have any (though they do in their openers) I really hope we can make the season without anymore hooks' tonga repeats

=====

Re:Utes lose another DL

Posted by jhw5 - 2008/05/21 07:22

Interesting that he came from BYU. Did he commit to the Y before the mish, or did he play/redshirt a year before the mish? Best of luck with getting over the injury; lingering pain sucks!

Also interesting that Dave Kruger has already been penciled in as the backup noseguard. The coaches haven't even seen what he can do playing D-I caliber athletes, and he's already the backup. They must be thin!

=====

Re:Utes lose another DL

Posted by cscoug - 2008/05/21 10:12

...I know the coaches weren't that happy with his work ethic either, so it's not much of a surprise that he is leaving the program.

Anybody else get the impression that this was the reason he left the Y in the first place? Bronco is definitely imposing high expectations, and I can only believe that is a positive.

=====

Re:Utes lose another DL

Posted by x_rugger - 2008/05/21 15:05

iirc it had more to do with an available schollie. what i remember is that he came home early from his mission, and byu didn't have one available until the fall. the u had one right then, and away he went. looks like we made out ok in the long run. i wonder what this could mean to his little brother, a 3-star lb recruit both byu and the u are chasing.

i find it interesting that they are looking at kruger inside, i thought he was a de, and siliaga was supposed to be the dt of that class.

Re:Utes lose another DL

Posted by TimO - 2008/05/21 21:27

this just brings to question, how far will johnson make it before his season ends...again.

Re:Utes lose another DL

Posted by Island Pipeline - 2008/05/22 16:05

Word on the streets is that Filiaga wants to concentrate on his Singing career.

Re:Utes lose another DL

Posted by PO_POcoug - 2008/05/22 19:37

x_rugger wrote:

iirc it had more to do with an available schollie. what i remember is that he came home early from his mission, and byu didn't have one available until the fall. the u had one right then, and away he went. looks like we made out ok in the long run. i wonder what this could mean to his little brother, a 3-star lb recruit both byu and the u are chasing.

i find it interesting that they are looking at kruger inside, i thought he was a de, and siliaga was supposed to be the dt of that class.

The information I have comes from one of the Assistant Principal's at Bingham who lives in my ward.. he said Filiaga wants to go to BYU.. take that for what it is worth..

Re:Utes lose another DL

Posted by stuckinbig10country - 2008/05/23 07:14

In conference transfer rules suck. If they are the same as they were in basketball (remember Trent Whiting), they not only have to sit out a year, but they lose an additional year of eligibility on top of that. If he goes to BYU, he might not be going there to play football.

Re:Utes lose another DL

Posted by PO_POcoug - 2008/05/23 11:19

stuckinbig10country wrote:

In conference transfer rules suck. If they are the same as they were in basketball (remember Trent Whiting), they not only have to sit out a year, but they lose an additional year of eligibility on top of that. If he goes to BYU, he might not be going there to play football.

Sorry.. I meant his brother.. I think it is his brother... the Linebacker from Bingham. hope that clears it up..

=====