Did anybody else notice that Mike Sanford's record as coach of UNLV was the same as Brent Guy of Utah State? I think the former Ute Sanford has a long ways to go.....

He should first try to be the best football team in the state of Nevada.

But seriously, it would be a GREAT thing if UNLV would actually be good in football if for no other reason that the increased interest in the program due to winning would result in a massive stadium expansion allowing the Las Vegas Bowl to increase its stature among bowl games.

As i was reading the letter, my wife asked what i was reading. When i told her, she laughed and said: "Liar, those letters should say our goal at unlv is to win half our games." Now that's lofty!

it's interesting, most coaches have pretty good relationships with each other, but people don't like sanford cause he's a tool and it'll be interesting to see where he goes...maybe he'll get his job back at the yew

I think it's very clear now that Urban was the genius behind the offense at yewtah. Sanford will be lucky to be anywhere after he fields another 2 win team this year. Nothing I've seen or read about him impresses me.

There was Beau Bell!

But he was a Robinson recruit...

This is my favorite Sanford moment. After loosing on a play that he thought should be reviewed, he went looking for the Iowa St. AD to force them to look at the replay.
