

---

Yet another MTN discution

Posted by nobandwagoners - 2007/02/12 15:53

---

sorry to do this, but I sent an email to Direct TV, and this was the reply I got

Dear Robert,

Thanks for your interest in DIRECTV. I'm excited to hear that you're considering joining the DIRECTV family.

As you know, we don't carry the Mountain West Network (the MTN) right now, but weâ€™re in discussions with the programmer and we canâ€™t discuss the details of our ongoing negotiations. Be assured that weâ€™re working very hard to add this exciting sports network to our channel lineup.

We often add programming based on customer requests, so thank you for letting us know how much you want to watch sports on the MTN. I have forwarded your request to DIRECTV management.

Hopefully something gets done before next season

=====

Yet another MTN discution

Posted by joshuaajohnson - 2007/02/12 15:59

---

Whichever one (Dish or DirecTV) picks it up first will be what I choose when I move to Ohio. I love Comcast (never had a problem with it, really like the cable internet), but they are not the cable provider there, TimeWarner is, and I would prefer not to deal with any company that is associated with America Online again.

=====

Re: Yet another MTN discution

Posted by cougfan1 - 2007/02/12 16:00

---

nobandwagonerssorry to do this, but I sent an email to Direct TV, and this was the reply I got

Dear Robert,

Thanks for your interest in DIRECTV. I'm excited to hear that you're considering joining the DIRECTV family.

As you know, we don't carry the Mountain West Network (the MTN) right now, but weâ€™re in discussions with the programmer and we canâ€™t discuss the details of our ongoing negotiations. Be assured that weâ€™re working very hard to add this exciting sports network to our channel lineup.

We often add programming based on customer requests, so thank you for letting us know how much you want to watch sports on the MTN. I have forwarded your request to DIRECTV management.

Hopefully something gets done before next season

It is the "ongoing discussions" that sounds the same. It is hard to know if this statement is more serious or just a positive spin to get potential customers to commit to DIRECTV.

=====

Re: Yet another MTN discution

Posted by etyotx - 2007/02/12 16:08

---

cougfan1nobandwagonerssorry to do this, but I sent an email to Direct TV, and this was the reply I got

Dear Robert,

Thanks for your interest in DIRECTV. I'm excited to hear that you're considering joining the DIRECTV family.

As you know, we don't carry the Mountain West Network (the MTN) right now, but weâ€™re in discussions with the programmer and we can't discuss the details of our ongoing negotiations. Be assured that we're working very hard to add this exciting sports network to our channel lineup.

---

We often add programming based on customer requests, so thank you for letting us know how much you want to watch sports on the MTN. I have forwarded your request to DIRECTV management.

Hopefully something gets done before next season

It is the "ongoing discussions" that sounds the same. It is hard to know if this statement is more serious or just a positive spin to get potential customers to commit to DIRECTV.

...or the same statement they've been giving since last June?

=====

Yet another MTN discussion

Posted by Hawkwing - 2007/02/12 19:10

---

I suggest that you join me in emailing Comcast and pestering them to make the channel available nationwide, or at least explain why this channel isn't available on Comcast outside of a few MWC cities.

=====

Yet another MTN discussion

Posted by imuakahuku - 2007/02/12 19:12

---

joshuajohnsonWhichever one (Dish or DirecTV) picks it up first will be what I choose when I move to Ohio. I love Comcast (never had a problem with it, really like the cable internet), but they are not the cable provider there, TimeWarner is, and I would prefer not to deal with any company that is associated with America Online again.

You going to Ohio for residency? What part of Ohio? Last year I watched six games total (including the LV Bowl!) Dish or somebody better get moving on this! The rest were spent listening to them on KSL.com

=====

Yet another MTN discussion

Posted by Iceman - 2007/02/12 19:17

---

HawkwingI suggest that you join me in emailing Comcast and pestering them to make the channel available nationwide, or at least explain why this channel isn't available on Comcast outside of a few MWC cities. It's the MOUNTAIN WEST NETWORK. No other market out there that would warrant Comcast providing it anywhere else.

Thanks again Craig Thompson. I hope YOU get to enjoy your kickbacks.

Oh, BTW the Czar of screw sent us another message:

<http://www.freemileys.org/emo/whacky084.gif>

=====

Yet another MTN discussion

Posted by Mingjai - 2007/02/12 21:07

---

HawkwingI suggest that you join me in emailing Comcast and pestering them to make the channel available nationwide, or at least explain why this channel isn't available on Comcast outside of a few MWC cities.

I've called a few times, but I'm up for making a few more calls.

=====

Yet another MTN discussion

Posted by joshuajohnson - 2007/02/13 10:22

---

imuakahukujoshuajohnsonWhichever one (Dish or DirecTV) picks it up first will be what I choose when I move to Ohio. I love Comcast (never had a problem with it, really like the cable internet), but they are not the cable provider there, TimeWarner is, and I would prefer not to deal with any company that is associated with America Online again.

You going to Ohio for residency? What part of Ohio? Last year I watched six games total (including the LV Bowl!) Dish or somebody better get moving on this! The rest were spent listening to them on KSL.com

Moving for a job. Will be in the Dayton area.

=====

Yet another MTN discution

Posted by Conosticator - 2007/02/13 10:29

---

IcemanHawkwingI suggest that you join me in emailing Comcast and pestering them to make the channel available nationwide, or at least explain why this channel isn't available on Comcast outside of a few MWC cities. It's the MOUNTAIN WEST NETWORK. No other market out there that would warrant Comcast providing it anywhere else.

Thanks again Craig Thompson. I hope YOU get to enjoy your kickbacks.

Oh, BTW the Czar of screw sent us another message:

<http://www.freemileys.org/emo/whacky084.gif>

Hey, could you edit the image. It bothers me to see those guys in Blue bowing down to someone in Red. That just ain't right. It must be the other way around.

=====

Yet another MTN discution

Posted by Polycougar - 2007/02/13 10:34

---

I guess what makes me the angriest over all of this, is the fact its all BYU fans carrying the charge for the MTN to be seen. I've read about it in reports and all and its kind of frustrating. I guess I just wish the MTN would let thier games be broadcast on BYUTV or something close to that... but then again they'd loose their only source of ticked off, E-mail sending, phone call barraging fans.

I really like the idea of the Network, but man we're in a black hole. If we weren't in the Sportscenter top ten almost every game this season, I'm guessing we'd probably never have been ranked. And I'm sure a few noticeable showings by our Basketball team would really help (besides the one flat game against Michigan State).

=====

Re:Yet another MTN discution

Posted by ajweston - 2008/07/01 09:13

---

As of August 27, 2008 Direct Tv will be offering the Mountain nationwide along with CSTV and Versus so no cougar fan in all 50 states will ever have to miss another cougar victory. I happen to be a National Retailer for Direct Tv based in SLC but service all 50 states. If you want any information about their packages and pricing you can email me at slcvip@gmail.com with your name and phone number and I will contact you within 24 hours. I realize that ID fraud is the fastest growing crime in America so I understand if there is any hesitation giving out personal info. So When I contact you I will call from our headquarters and give you a number where I can be reached to verify who I work for, as well as, give you our website and am required to play legal disclosures for you. At this time Direct Tv has a promotion where they are giving away the NFL Sunday Ticket (which the have exclusive rights to) for free for signing up with certain packages so contact me and I will be happy to review your options with you. Don't miss a game of this possible BCS season, it will definately be a memorable one!

=====

Re:Yet another MTN discution

Posted by ajweston - 2008/07/01 09:15

---

Check my post on the cougarblue.com board about dtv and dish picking up the Mountain. its official as of August 27, 2008!

---

Re:Yet another MTN discution

Posted by jeremygeorge - 2008/07/01 09:26

---

Its too bad that all of you Direct TV people haven't had the mountain. You could have seen a replay of a Mountain West team LOSING to a PAC 10 a couple nights ago. Also, they have replayed a mid-80's bowl game between UCLA and BYU where BYU got killed. Sorry AJ, but the Mountain sucks.

---

Re:Yet another MTN discution

Posted by jhw5 - 2008/07/01 09:40

---

ajweston wrote:

Check my post on the cougarblue.com board about dtv and dish picking up the Mountain. its official as of August 27, 2008!

First I've heard of this. Source?

---

Re:Yet another MTN discution

Posted by stuckinbig10country - 2008/07/01 09:50

---

jhw5 wrote:

ajweston wrote:

Check my post on the cougarblue.com board about dtv and dish picking up the Mountain. its official as of August 27, 2008!

First I've heard of this. Source?

I would almost believe this. The satellites work together often. DTV had the Big 10 network, but Dish just picked it up with little to no fanfare. It just appeared on their channel listing.

---

Re:Yet another MTN discution

Posted by jhw5 - 2008/07/01 09:54

---

Dish had the Big 10 network all last CFB season. I think there would be a huge applause on all the boards and Utah newspapers if/when Dish does sign up for the mtn.