After you vote yes, check out the state by state breakdown. I love that we're 0% in Hawaii.

BTW, the poll (as always) is in the lower right corner.

4 Votes from Alaska when I checked, and we were split two-two. Apparently there's not a lot going on in Alaska...

I need to correct that statement. Texas has the highest number of votes, at 396 right now. Seeing how many people are on ESPN online maybe it's more accurate to say there's not much going on in Texas.

BYU is taking a beating in that poll. Quite frankly, I'm a little surprised that more than 75% vote no. O ye of little faith ...

I guess that just means that 75% of the country will be shocked in January.

I think it is kind of comforting that 75% of the country still doubts us. I much prefer to have people doubting the cougs. definitely gives a little extra motivations as well as a little extra satisfaction.

Right, because BYU had a ton of national respect before the mtn...
Lets hope all this BYU BCS talk doesn't jinx us... Knock on John Beck.

Howdie!

Hope you folks don't mind a Wyoming Coog. I admit that I get a Little nervous when I constantly read articles or polls that puts us in the fore-front of a BCS bowl. But, I got to say that I also get a few goose bumps too.

What do you expect? after last seasons nonBCS team was slapped silly nobody thinks BYU or any nonBCS team should be playing ina BCS bowl. All they see is BSU winning by trick plays after playing a weak OOC and a weak conferecne. then watching Hawaii barely win out after playing the sorriest SOS in D-1 football only to be beaten badly. BYU's schedule looks formidable to say the least Washington and UCLA though far from high powered teams still are viewed well as being pretty good BCS teams. then the MWC is viewed as being a lot tougher after last seaosns bowl recults and our BCS win average. Add to that we are playing Utah and TCU on the road and most people think they are tough programs and of course they don't think we'll make it.

last time i checked wyo., utah, nevada, alaska, and nm all had said yes...out of only about 20 votes per state...hawaii had 6 and all said no. But they had an incredible weak sched. so they are jealous or something
