
Guess who I sold fireworks to today?

Posted by Beavercoug - 2008/07/04 02:11

So I am selling fireworks down here in Beaver Utah today (7/3/2008) and a car pulls up and out steps John Beck. His grandparents live here in town and he was buying some stuff for the fourth. We had a short talk about old times but he was also very optimistic about Miami's season this year. He said a lot of changes have been made and he thinks that this season will run much smoother. He didn't say anything about starting but he made it seem like it was his job to lose. I did score a good looking autograph too.

Let's hope he stays away from lighting them so he doesn't accidentally blow off a finger or something.

Cool! My buddy is from the Fillmore/Beaver area and he went back for the weekend. I'll tell him to keep his eyes peeled for John.

I saw Harvey Unga at the airport on Wednesday. He was walking off a plane while I was waiting for mine. I didn't run after him though cause that might have been weird.

When I was a kid my brother and I were sitting in the car while my mom was buying fireworks when Ty Detmer walked passed us and up to the stand. My brother and I jumped out of the car and walked up next to him and just stared at him. My mom recognized him and got real excited and we all got autographs.

That's my cougar holiday story.

I was in the airport filming a school project (pre 9/11 days) and while we were sitting there filming out walked Steve Young and the rest of the 49ner football team, returning from their superbowl victory.

We followed them down to bagage claim, chatted it up with Steve Young, Jerry Rice and got to hold their super bowl rings. Very cool experience. We even got them on film.

I once attended a function where I was bumping elbows with the likes of such players as Steve Young, Jerry Rice, Walter Payton, Michael Jordan, Tiger Woods (who actually had me try some of the shrimp dip he had on his plate), Lavell Edwards, Ben Cahoon (who referred to me as his little brother), Ty Detmer, Larry Bird (who played a quick game of pig against me....needless to say I lost badly), and many more big time sports stars. Needless to say I got tons of autographs and stuffed myself full of delicious food which was served by the entire Dallas Cowboys cheerleading team while the '85 Bears performed the "Super Bowl Shuffle" in the background.

Then I woke up and as hard as I tried to fall back to sleep I wasn't able to and so got up and got dressed for work. :(But for a while...if only in a dream...I was actually there with all of them. :laugh:

Go Cougs!

That's funny that you dreamed about one of my experiences. Kind of creepy, though.

Ty and Kim Detmer once stalked me and my brother in University Mall.:blink: It was while they were engaged and it started to freak us out. Then we realized that they weren't stalking us, we just happened to have the same taste in where to shop for clothes and we were about 5 minutes ahead of them in the cycle. ;)
